Cuba Trying To Sidestep Inspections

State Department Wants UN To Make Check Of Island

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Monday accused Cuba of trying to sidestep international verification that there are no offensive Soviet weapons on the island.

Replying to the Castro government's demand for dismantling of Cuban refugee bases in the United States, State Department spokesman Lincoln White said:

"The Cuban government's statement constitutes an attempt to avoid adequate international arrangements for inspection and verification that Cuba will not once again become a base for offensive weapons.

"If the Cuban government is sincerely anxious about its own security and is determined to live at peace with its neighbors, we can think of no better method of allaying its fears than by the presence in Cuba of representatives of the United Nations."

White declined comment on whether the statement was a rejection of the Cuban proposal. Officials later noted that a proposal which has not been formally advanced requires no formal rejection.

These officials added that the new Cuban proposal embodies a demand for return of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, which had previously been described as non-negotiable. They also said that the United States has been negotiating with Russia, and not with Cuba in seeking to assure peace for the Caribbean.

Makes Inspection Offer

The Cuban statement, printed in the government press, said Fidel Castro's government would allow U.N. inspections in its territory only if the United States would submit to U.N.-supervised dismantling of what it called "training camps of mercenaries, spies, saboteurs and terrorists" on U.S. soil.

The statement also said that "Cuba reserves the right to acquire arms of any type for its defense and to take the steps it deems pertinent to strengthening its security."

Castro's cabinet and the National Board of the Integrated Revolutionary Organizations drew up the new demand at a two-hour session Sunday night. It was intended as an answer to President Kennedy's news conference remarks last week restating U.S. insistence on international inspection.

White said the Cuban statement had not been officially brought to this country's attention. Initial reaction was based on a Havana radio broadcast of it, he said.

Mikoyan Ends Visit

The new demand from Cuba came as Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan ended an extended stay on the island and went to the United Nations.

Five Killed In Plane Crash

SMYRNA, Tenn. (AP)—An engine failed as an Air Force C130A Hercules plane took off from Sewart Air Force Base late Monday and the plane crashed and burned, killing the crew of five.

The fire sent up a mushroom column of smoke seen 15 miles away in Nashville.

"We believe the pilot had a power failure on a left engine and veered off the runway," said Col. George C. Byrne Jr., commanding officer of the 839th Air Division.

The pilot reported the failure to the tower as he roared down the runway, on a training flight, but was unable to stop the big transport plane.

India Dislikes Truce Proposal

Part Of Red Offer Termed Unacceptable

By PATRICK J. KILLEN

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India said Monday parts of the Chinese Communist truce proposal were "unacceptable". However, the proposals were not rejected outright, apparently because India did not wish to disturb the six-day-old cease-fire.

The statement read by a government spokesman was the first official reaction to the Chinese offer although India said earlier it was asking Peking for clarification of several points. The spokesman said the offer still was under study.

The government statement said the Communist proposals that each side withdraw from parts of the disputed border line would give the Chinese 2,000 square miles acquired by force in the Ladakh area of Kashmir since Sept. 8. The spokesman denied the Chinese actually controlled the area of Ladakh where they captured 43 Indian outposts.

In the North East Frontier Agency (NEFA), he said, the Chinese would continue to control vital high ground between the McMahon line and the captured monastery town of Towang. The Indians insist that Towang is 16 miles south of the McMahon line.

More Favorable

The spokesman began the statement by saying there was "a notion" that the Chinese communication of Nov. 21 implied a Chinese proposal "more favorable" to India than the terms proposed earlier by India.

"If so," he said, "China should accept the Indian position."

The spokesman said the Communist proposal would call for Indian withdrawal from strongpoints bordering Utter Pradash state in the central section of the border and that they would have to give up Towang permanently.

Asked the purpose of the statement, the spokesman said: "I am giving you facts. You can draw your own inferences."

May Reject It

The inference drawn by observers was that India eventually would reject the Communist proposal but not as long as the cease-fire is giving India a chance to build up its shattered border defenses.

Twelve American C130 transports shuttled war supplies to the front Monday, taking off at 15 minute intervals from New Delhi's Palam Airfield. All returned by nightfall.

Asks Admission To Alabama U.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A Negro coed seeking a career in personnel management confirmed Monday that she has applied for admission to the all-white University of Alabama.

The coed, Vivian Malone, 20, of Mobile, apparently is one of three Negroes seeking to begin classes at the university in Tuscaloosa when the next semester begins in February.

The university, which announced receipt of an application from a Negro several weeks ago, said Monday it has received entry forms from two other Negroes.

The university is under a six-year-old federal court order not to discriminate against potential students, but only one Negro has ever attended classes. She was Miss Autherine Lucy, who stayed on the Alabama campus only three days in 1956 before a mob drove her away.

A federal judge ordered that she be readmitted, but the university expelled her for accusing university officials of conspiring with the mob. The judge upheld the expulsion when she was unable to prove the charges.

27 Die As Two Planes Collide

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) —A small private plane crashed into a Brazilian Vasp Airlines transport in flight Monday and 27 persons died in the flaming wreckage of the two aircraft.

The wreckage of the two planes was found near the village of Sao Jose dos Campos, about 65 miles northeast of Sao Paulo.

The airliner carried 18 passengers and 5 crewmen. The small plane carried four persons, including a woman.

All 27 persons who perished were identified as Brazilians.

There was no immediate explanation for the collision.

Claim Persists Cuba Has Missiles

MIAMI (UPI)—A new report that Russian missiles are still in Cuba was released here Monday by the Cuban Manufacturers Association in Exile.

The Association, headed by former industrialist Julio Diaz Rivera, said "a special missile base is under construction" near the town of Tetuan in northern Las Villas Province. Tetuan is about 25 miles northeast of Santa Clara.

Soviet missile bases at two other nearby towns, Camajuani and Remedios, "have only been partly dismantled," the report said.

40 Die In Flood

TUNIS (AP)—At least 40 persons died and hundreds were injured Monday as floods caused by torrential rains spilled over fringe areas of the Tunisian Sahara.

Primitive homes crumbled under the downpour. Thousands of rainsoaked refugees camped in schools and public buildings.

Food and supplies were rushed to the stricken areas.

Telstar Develops Circuit Trouble

MURRAY HILL, N.J. (UPI) — The Telstar communications satellite has developed difficulties in its command circuit, officials of Bell Telephone Laboratories said Monday.

A spokesman said the satellite "won't take orders to turn its communications receiver and transmitter on and off." He said the trouble does not affect telemetry transmissions.

The last time the command circuit worked properly was on the 1,242nd orbit last Friday.

Miner Is Killed At Pigeon Creek

WILLIAMSON, W. Va. (UPI)—A Kentucky coal miner was killed Monday at the Island Creek No. 27 mine at Pigeon Creek in Mingo County.

U.S. Is Cold To Proposals From Castro

Mikoyan Meets With Delegation At United Nations

By BRUCE W. MUNN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan arrived from Cuba Monday, voicing full support for Premier Fidel Castro's policy, and went to a top-level dinner with U.S. and U.N. crisis negotiators. No Cubans were present.

Castro, in a new demand Monday, agreed to permit on-site U. N. inspection of offensive bases in Cuba only if similar inspection were carried out in the United States and at "invasion" bases throughout the Western hemisphere.

The State Department said Castro's new demand was "an attempt to avoid adequate international arrangements for inspection and verification so that Cuba will not once again become a base for offensive weapons."

Mikoyan, returning from a 24-day visit to Cuba in which he repeatedly and secretly conferred with Castro, said the bearded leader's demand was a "just proposal of Cuba and we support it."

Demand Reciprocal Check

The Soviet-Cuban demand for reciprocal inspection was raised several weeks ago at a Sunday lunch discussion between John J. McCloy of the United States and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov.

McCloy told Kuznetsov the United States could be interested in such an arrangement only if it meant global inspection of all bases, including those within the Soviet Union. The Russians have not raised the issue since.

McCloy and Ambassadors Adlai E. Stevenson and Charles W. Yost attended the dinner for the United States. Russians present were Mikoyan, Kuznetsov, Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin, Antoly Dobrynin, ambassador to Washington, and L. I. Mendelevich of the foreign office. Representing the United Nations were Thant, undersecretaries Ralph J. Bunche of the United States, Evgeny D. Kiselev of the Soviet Union, Omar Loutfi of the United Arab Republic, Hernane Tavares de Sa of Brazil and Chakravarthy V. Narasimhan of India, and military advise Brigadier Indar Jit Rikhye of India.

Won't Accept Proposal

Stevenson, together with McCloy and Yost, visited Thant Monday afternoon, ostensibly to tell the U.N. chief that a 14-point "protocol" with which the Russians hoped to wind up the Cuban crisis in a Security Council meeting this week was unacceptable.

The United States turned down the protocol because it contained Castro's long-standing five-point demands, including U. S. evacuation of the Guantanamo naval base. The United States has insisted it will not discuss Castro's five points in any form.

However, Mikoyan defended the five points on his arrival Monday.

Reds Offer To Halt All Nuclear Tests

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union offered Monday to halt all nuclear weapons tests by the end of the year, but rejected the international inspection arrangements demanded by the West.

The typical East-West impasse developed at the resumption of the 17-nation disarmament conference which heard a message from President Kennedy expressing hope that the new round of negotiations will end "the upward spiral of weapons competition."

"It is clear that a renewed and immediate effort must be made to halt the constantly increasing tempo of the arms race if there is to be assurance of a lessening of the danger of war," said the Kennedy statement, read by U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean.

Among initial measures, the President said, "we believe high priority should be given to the conclusion of an effective agreement which would end once and for all tests of nuclear weapons.

Dean himself said the talks reopened under more hopeful auspices than the deadlock in which they adjourned 11 weeks ago.

"We have a moment in history favorable to a real beginning in the fulfillment of our responsibility," he said.

Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin, who presided at the opening session in the Palace of Nations, also hinted the Cuban crisis may clear the way for progress.

"Recent events in the Caribbean," he said, "made clear to everyone the urgent need to solve the problem of disarmament and eliminate the threat of a rocket nuclear war."

Poles Warned Of Hard Times

WARSAW (UPI)—Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka warned his countrymen Sunday of hard times ahead and told them to tighten their belts.

Gomulka said the harvest was poor and industrial production would be less than expected. He warned that the European Common Market might choke off major outlets for Poland's vital exports.

In his televised speech, Gomulka said Poland's harvest had been poor because of heavy rains in May and June. He warned that the rate of increase in industrial production would be only 5 per cent this year.

Soviet May Cut Off Oil To China

ROME (UPI)—The Soviet Union threatened to cut off Red China's fuel supplies if it continued its attack on India, unconfirmed reports here said Monday.

The Continentale news agency, which specializes in Iron Curtain affairs and claims that it has reliable sources in Communist countries, reported the alleged threat.

"According to reports circulating insistently in Communist circles in Prague, one of the principal causes of the sudden suspension of the Chinese attack on India was a Soviet threat to immediately cut off all shipments of gasoline," the agency said.

Warning Issued About Drugs Which May Deform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The heads of the U.S. Public Health Service and the Food and Drug Administration Monday urged the American women to check with their doctors before taking any drugs during pregnancy.

Surgeon General Luther H. Terry and FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick made the statement through their press officers after new reports were received from Europe that more drugs were suspected of causing birth deformities.

The FDA reported it had not traced any deformed American births thus far to use of the new drug suspects — Preludin, a weight reducer, and Postafen, an anti-seasickness medication.

An FDA spokesman said: "Both drugs are on sale in the United States, probably also under different names. The Bureau of Medicine is investigating but has not yet turned up any adverse reactions connected to the drugs."

Terry said, "it is certainly advisable for all expectant mothers to check with their physicians before taking any drug. In fact, this is a good rule to follow generally."

Traffic Toll Over Holiday Reached 722

By The Associated Press

Traffic	514

Traffic accidents killed at least 514 Americans during the long Thanksgiving holiday.

The auto victims were among 722 who died through misadventure in the 102-hour period that began at 6 p.m., local time, Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday. Fires took 48 of the lives.

The single accident that struck down more than any other was the crash of a United Air Lines plane near Laurel, Md., Friday, killing 17.

But the activity that caused 5 of every 7 accident deaths was driving.

The traffic toll for the four-day period was heavier than for a non-holiday span of similar length at this time of year. It was 34 higher than the 480 that the National Safety Council said was expectable.

It was 55 more than the actual count of traffic deaths made by The Associated Press for comparative purposes between 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 7, and midnight Sunday, Nov. 11.

Accident mortality counts for Thanksgiving, the evening preceding it, and the period through the Sunday after it, have been made ony since 1958. The highest traffic fatality count in this period was the 1961 figure — 457. The highest toll of all accident fatalities for a Thanksgiving period from 1958 through 1961 was 650.

Red Guerrillas Launch Attacks

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist guerrillas have launched a rainy season offensive apparently aimed at disrupting South Viet Nam's vital rice harvest.

But the fight has been going badly for the Viet Cong. At least 227 guerrillas have been reported killed in widely scattered actions in the past three days.

The Communists suffered one of their heaviest losses Sunday when 124 guerrillas were killed and six officers captured in attacks on two government posts in the north central highlands. Eight government soldiers were reported wounded in the battle.

In this action, an intelligence-tipped government howitzer battalion lighted the night skies with illumination shells, then chopped up two attacking Viet Cong regular battalions with direct fire from 105-millimeter howitzers. Both battalion commanders were killed.

Guatemala Links Revolt To Castro

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Guatemala was reliably reported Monday night to be planning to offer the Organization of American States (OAS) evidence it claims would link the Cuban government to Sunday's short-lived revolt against President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes.

Ambassador Carlos Urrutia Aparicio, Guatemalan representative to the OAS, was said to have advised a special OAS committee studying Communist subversion that such information would be available "within a few days."

Ydigoras charged Sunday night that the rebellion was financed by "money from Fidel Castro," arch foe of the Guatemalan regime.

JFK Lauds Guardians Of Freedom

Presents Awards Of Merit To Two Air Force Wings

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy flew to within 90 miles of Havana Monday and saw on-the-spot evidence of how quickly the United States mustered a Cuban emergency force.

The President got secret briefings from the American fighting men who stood closest to Cuba during the crisis over Russian rockets. He expressed deep appreciation to the men who "made it possible for the United States to defend its security in very difficult times."

During his tour, he voiced a personal thank you to the men who created a bastion on the southeast coast, Kennedy also cautioned the combat-ready troops that days of danger have not vanished.

He said the nation will continue to live in crisis and danger, "certainly through this decade."

From a visit with armored troops at Ft. Stewart, Ga., Kennedy hopped to Homestead Air Force Base and to the Key West crisis hot spot—only 90 miles across the Florida strait—form Cuba — for a look at Air Force, Navy and Marine planes and the pilots who fly them.

The President cited crews of high and low flying reconnaissance planes, at Homestead and the Boca Chica Naval Air Station at Key West, and the men who hung an aerial shield over the flights.

Personal Call

Kennedy's inspection was termed a personal call by the White House on the thousands of soldiers, sailors and airmen hastily assembled during the Cuban crisis. In effect, he thanked the military men for guaranteeing the freedom of the Western world.

But he also took a close look at the men and machines lined up to do the job and received extensive personal briefings from the officers charged with military responsibilities in the continuing Cuban crisis.

He visited the "war room" at Homestead, control center for military activities in the area, and got separate briefings from the Army and Air Force.

The President landed in Florida under sunny skies with the temperature in the mid-70s after braving chilling winds during his earlier visits to two Georgia bases.

Kennedy drove past long lines of Air Force planes, many of them armed with missiles. Flashing overhead were 72 Tactical Air Command fighters along with 24 Navy and eight Marine Corps jets. Two Voodoo photo planes passed underneath in a simulated low-level photo reconnaissance mission, similar to the flights keeping an eye on Fidel Castro's military activities in Cuba.

Issues Awards

The President paused to hand Air Force Outstanding Merit Awards to the 363rd Tactical Reconnaissance Wing and the 4080th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing of the Strategic Air Command.

Then he went to the briefings, by Col. George I. Ruddell of Los Angeles for the Air Force; and Lt. Col. Robert C. Russell of Rochester, N.Y., for the Army.

The trip came on the eve of what was expected to be a dispersal to home bases of a considerable portion of the force.

Kennedy flew into Homestead from Hunter AFB, Ga., and Ft. Stewart, Ga., where he addressed 3,000 soldiers of the 1st Armored Division—the Army's newest armored division.

He told them that they and millions of their comrades form "the keystone of the arch of freedom around the world."

Two-Year-Old Boy Stabbed, Beaten

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI)—Two eight-year-old boys were held by police Monday on charges they stabbed and beat a two-year-old boy and left him in an oil drum in 33-degree weather.

Kees Hamrath was discovered by police at the rear of a mid-town foundry after his mother reported him missing Sunday. He had been stuffed into the oil drum with a rope tied around his neck.

Kees was rushed unconscious to Hamilton General Hospital. Police said he had been stabbed with an ice pick, beaten with sticks and that his assailants, whom they did not identify, had dropped a 20-pound piece of wood on his head.

India Dislikes Truce Proposal

Part Of Red Offer Termed Unacceptable

By PATRICK J. KILLEN

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India said Monday parts of the Chinese Communist truce proposal were "unacceptable". However, the proposals were not rejected outright, apparently because India did not wish to disturb the six-day-old cease-fire.

The statement read by a government spokesman was the first official reaction to the Chinese offer although India said earlier it was asking Peking for clarification of several points. The spokesman said the offer still was under study.

The government statement said the Communist proposals that each side withdraw from parts of the disputed border line would give the Chinese 2,000 square miles acquired by force in the Ladakh area of Kashmir since Sept. 8. The spokesman began the statement by saying there was "a notion" that the Chinese communication of Nov. 21 implied a Chinese proposal "more favorable" to India than the terms proposed earlier by India.

"If so," he said, "China should accept the Indian position."

The spokesman said the Communist proposal would call for Indian withdrawal from strongpoints bordering Utter Pradash state in the central section of the border and that they would have to give up Towang permanently.

Asked the purpose of the statement, the spokesman said: "I am giving you facts. You can draw your own inferences."

May Reject It

The inference drawn by observers was that India eventually would reject the Communist proposal but not as long as the cease-fire is giving India a chance to build up its shattered border defenses.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A Negro coed seeking a career in personnel management confirmed Monday that she has applied for admission to the all-white University of Alabama.

Reds Offer To Halt All Nuclear Tests

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union offered Monday to halt all nuclear weapons tests by the end of the year, but rejected the international inspection arrangements demanded by the West.

The typical East-West impasse developed at the resumption of the 17-nation disarmament conference which heard a message from President Kennedy expressing hope that the new round of negotiations will end "the upward spiral of weapons competition."

"It is clear that a renewed and immediate effort must be made to halt the constantly increasing tempo of the arms race if there is to be assurance of a lessening of the danger of war," said the Kennedy statement, read by U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean.

Among initial measures, the President said, "we believe high priority should be given to the conclusion of an effective agreement which would end once and for all tests of nuclear weapons.

Dean himself said the talks reopened under more hopeful auspices than the deadlock in which they adjourned 11 weeks ago.

"We have a moment in history favorable to a real beginning in the fulfillment of our responsibility," he said.

Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin, who presided at the opening session in the Palace of Nations, also hinted the Cuban crisis may clear the way for progress.

"Recent events in the Caribbean," he said, "made clear to everyone the urgent need to solve the problem of disarmament and eliminate the threat of a rocket nuclear war."

Poles Warned Of Hard Times

WARSAW (UPI)—Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka warned his countrymen Sunday of hard times ahead and told them to tighten their belts.

Gomulka said the harvest was poor and industrial production would be less than expected. He warned that the European Common Market might choke off major outlets for Poland's vital exports.

In his televised speech, Gomulka said Poland's harvest had been poor because of heavy rains in May and June. He warned that the rate of increase in industrial production would be only 5 per cent this year.

Soviet May Cut Off Oil To China

ROME (UPI)—The Soviet Union threatened to cut off Red China's fuel supplies if it continued its attack on India, unconfirmed reports here said Monday.

The Continentale news agency, which specializes in Iron Curtain affairs and claims that it has reliable sources in Communist countries, reported the alleged threat.

"According to reports circulating insistently in Communist circles in Prague, one of the principal causes of the sudden suspension of the Chinese attack on India was a Soviet threat to immediately cut off all shipments of gasoline," the agency said.

Warning Issued About Drugs Which May Deform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The heads of the U.S. Public Health Service and the Food and Drug Administration Monday urged the American women to check with their doctors before taking any drugs during pregnancy.

Surgeon General Luther H. Terry and FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick made the statement through their press officers after new reports were received from Europe that more drugs were suspected of causing birth deformities.

The FDA reported it had not traced any deformed American births thus far to use of the new drug suspects — Preludin, a weight reducer, and Postafen, an anti-seasickness medication.

An FDA spokesman said: "Both drugs are on sale in the United States, probably also under different names. The Bureau of Medicine is investigating but has not yet turned up any adverse reactions connected to the drugs."

Terry said, "it is certainly advisable for all expectant mothers to check with their physicians before taking any drug. In fact, this is a good rule to follow generally."

Traffic Toll Over Holiday Reached 722

By The Associated Press

Traffic	514
Fires	48
Miscellaneous	160
Total	722

Traffic accidents killed at least 514 Americans during the long Thanksgiving holiday.

The auto victims were among 722 who died through misadventure in the 102-hour period that began at 6 p.m., local time, Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday. Fires took 48 of the lives.

The single accident that struck down more than any other was the crash of a United Air Lines plane near Laurel, Md., Friday, killing 17.

But the activity that caused 5 of every 7 accident deaths was driving.

The traffic toll for the four-day period was heavier than for a non-holiday span of similar length at this time of year. It was 34 higher than the 480 that the National Safety Council said was expectable.

It was 55 more than the actual count of traffic deaths made by The Associated Press for comparative purposes between 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 7, and midnight Sunday, Nov. 11.

Accident mortality counts for Thanksgiving, the evening preceding it, and the period through the Sunday after it, have been made ony since 1958. The highest traffic fatality count in this period was the 1961 figure — 457. The highest toll of all accident fatalities for a Thanksgiving period from 1958 through 1961 was 650.

Red Guerrillas Launch Attacks

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist guerrillas have launched a rainy season offensive apparently aimed at disrupting South Viet Nam's vital rice harvest.

But the fight has been going badly for the Viet Cong. At least 227 guerrillas have been reported killed in widely scattered actions in the past three days.

The Communists suffered one of their heaviest losses Sunday when 124 guerrillas were killed and six officers captured in attacks on two government posts in the north central highlands. Eight government soldiers were reported wounded in the battle.

In this action, an intelligence-tipped government howitzer battalion lighted the night skies with illumination shells, then chopped up two attacking Viet Cong regular battalions with direct fire from 105-millimeter howitzers. Both battalion commanders were killed.

Guatemala Links Revolt To Castro

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Guatemala was reliably reported Monday night to be planning to offer the Organization of American States (OAS) evidence it claims would link the Cuban government to Sunday's short-lived revolt against President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes.

Ambassador Carlos Urrutia Aparicio, Guatemalan representative to the OAS, was said to have advised a special OAS committee studying Communist subversion that such information would be available "within a few days."

Ydigoras charged Sunday night that the rebellion was financed by "money from Fidel Castro," arch foe of the Guatemalan regime.

JFK Lauds Guardians Of Freedom

Presents Awards Of Merit To Two Air Force Wings

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy flew to within 90 miles of Havana Monday and saw on-the-spot evidence of how quickly the United States mustered a Cuban emergency force.

The President got secret briefings from the American fighting men who stood closest to Cuba during the crisis over Russian rockets. He expressed deep appreciation to the men who "made it possible for the United States to defend its security in very difficult times."

During his tour, he voiced a personal thank you to the men who created a bastion on the southeast coast, Kennedy also cautioned the combat-ready troops that days of danger have not vanished.

He said the nation will continue to live in crisis and danger, "certainly through this decade."

From a visit with armored troops at Ft. Stewart, Ga., Kennedy hopped to Homestead Air Force Base and to the Key West crisis hot spot—only 90 miles across the Florida strait—form Cuba — for a look at Air Force, Navy and Marine planes and the pilots who fly them.

The President cited crews of high and low flying reconnaissance planes, at Homestead and the Boca Chica Naval Air Station at Key West, and the men who hung an aerial shield over the flights.

Personal Call

Kennedy's inspection was termed a personal call by the White House on the thousands of soldiers, sailors and airmen hastily assembled during the Cuban crisis. In effect, he thanked the military men for guaranteeing the freedom of the Western world.

But he also took a close look at the men and machines lined up to do the job and received extensive personal briefings from the officers charged with military responsibilities in the continuing Cuban crisis.

He visited the "war room" at Homestead, control center for military activities in the area, and got separate briefings from the Army and Air Force.

The President landed in Florida under sunny skies with the temperature in the mid-70s after braving chilling winds during his earlier visits to two Georgia bases.

Kennedy drove past long lines of Air Force planes, many of them armed with missiles. Flashing overhead were 72 Tactical Air Command fighters along with 24 Navy and eight Marine Corps jets. Two Voodoo photo planes passed underneath in a simulated low-level photo reconnaissance mission, similar to the flights keeping an eye on Fidel Castro's military activities in Cuba.

Issues Awards

The President paused to hand Air Force Outstanding Merit Awards to the 363rd Tactical Reconnaissance Wing and the 4080th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing of the Strategic Air Command.

Then he went to the briefings, by Col. George I. Ruddell of Los Angeles for the Air Force; and Lt. Col. Robert C. Russell of Rochester, N.Y., for the Army.

The trip came on the eve of what was expected to be a dispersal to home bases of a considerable portion of the force.

Kennedy flew into Homestead from Hunter AFB, Ga., and Ft. Stewart, Ga., where he addressed 3,000 soldiers of the 1st Armored Division—the Army's newest armored division.

He told them that they and millions of their comrades form "the keystone of the arch of freedom around the world."

Two-Year-Old Boy Stabbed, Beaten

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI)—Two eight-year-old boys were held by police Monday on charges they stabbed and beat a two-year-old boy and left him in an oil drum in 33-degree weather.

Kees Hamrath was discovered by police at the rear of a mid-town foundry after his mother reported him missing Sunday. He had been stuffed into the oil drum with a rope tied around his neck.

Kees was rushed unconscious to Hamilton General Hospital. Police said he had been stabbed with an ice pick, beaten with sticks and that his assailants, whom they did not identify, had dropped a 20-pound piece of wood on his head.

Holy Council Begins Debating Church Unity

Reunification Of All Christians Is Central Theme

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Ecumenical Council Monday opened debate for the first time in more than five centuries on the great goal of a united Christendom.

The central theme of the council — reunification of all Christians in "one fold under one pastor" — came upon the assembly floor in St. Peter's basilica after 45 days of warm-up debate on other matters in which "liberal" and "conservative" churchmen tested their strength.

The first draft on church unity to come before the council Monday was limited in scope, referring only to relations with Eastern Orthodox Christians. The possibility of reunion with Protestant churches will come up for discussion later in a separate draft.

However, the present draft provides a test of how far the Roman Catholic church is willing to go to meet its "separated brothers."

Monday was the first time any Ecumenical Council has taken up the problem of unification since the Council of Florence in 1439, half a century before Columbus discovered America.

That council affected a short-lived reunion with the Orthodox Church which was denounced by the patriarch of Constantinople 33 years later.

The draft on reunification was worked out by a committee headed by Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, the Vatican Secretary of State.

An official communique said the draft states that the Catholic Church "does not wish to leave anything untried for achieving unity." It listed "theological, liturgical, juridical, psychological and practical" steps that can be taken to favor a reconciliation, and said some of them have already produced "good results."

At the same time, Cardinal Cicognani indicated in an address to the council that the Catholic Church cannot compromise on some principles which it considers basic "truths," such as the universal authority of the Pope.

Coin Shortage Being Eased, Director Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The director of the Mint said Monday steps have been taken to alleviate a shortage of coins in various parts of the country.

Eva B. Adams, the Mint director, said production is being stepped up in the Mints in Philadelphia and Denver. She guessed that the worst of the shortage is over.

The shortage of coins—pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters—first developed in the Midwest. It spread to other sections of the nation including New England, the South and the Far West.

Miss Adams said shortages in the supply of pennies are not unusual but recently various sections of the country have been clamoring for other small coins.

She said one factor contributing to the shortage was the failure of Congress to pass an omnibus supplemental appropriation bill which included $500,000 for the Mint. She said she meant no criticism of Congress, however. The money for the Mint was approved by both House and Senate but Congress did not pass the omnibus bill before adjournament.

Miss Adams said the Budget Bureau has arranged to shift funds to permit stepped-up production.

As a result, the Philadelphia Mint, which ordinarily works three shifts, now has gone on an overtime basis, including Saturdays and Sundays.

The two-shift Denver Mint also is working overtime to produce more coins.

Miss Adams said many factors are contributing to the increased use of hard money. Foremost, she said, is the steadily-growing population. Automatic merchandising machines, sales taxes, and children paying for school lunches with coins are among the increased uses, she said.

Bird That Crashed Plane Identified As A Swan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The bird that collided with a United Air Lines Viscount airliner shortly before the plane crashed near Ellicott City, Md., Friday was identified Monday as a whistling swan.

A spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Board said the swan—a type of bird that usually weighs 11 to 14 pounds—penetrated about a foot into the plane's stabilizer.

Seventeen persons were killed when the airliner plunged to earth and burned. It had taken off from Newark on a flight to Washington and Atlanta, and was about 15 miles southwest of Baltimore when the accident occurred.

The CAB spokesman said identification of the bird was made with the help of the Fish and Wildlife Service. He said the blow caused by the collision could have been strong enough to cause a structural break, or to start a fluttering motion that could tear off the tail.

Sale Of Luminous Dial Watches Banned In N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Health Department Monday banned the sale of luminous-dial pocket watches because it said such watches when worn near the waist may cause genetic damage from radiation.

Hanson Blatz, director of the department's office of radiation control, said young boys especially should not carry pocket watches.

He said some of the watches examined by the board of health give off 75 units of radiation a year. This is 150 times greater then the one-half unit of radiation per year which is considered a permissible and safe amount.

Dr. George James, commissioner of the Health Department, suggested that men who have radium-dialed pocket watches either stop wearing them or have the faces and hands replaced.

He said that there have been no actual cases of physical damage to pocket watch carriers reported, but the possibility of genetic damage to the reproductive organs is strong enough to cause concern.

Army To Add 20,000 Men

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army will expand its strength by 20,000 men through increased draft calls over the next six months, the Defense Department announced Monday.

It said the expansion, raising authorized Army strength to 980,000 would be "temporary" and could be achieved through "slightly increased" draft calls.

The increase was necessary, the Pentagon said, to insure that the Army has enough trained replacements to make up for the heavy exodus late next year of two-year draftees who were called up in the Berlin crisis last fall.

By starting an immediate expansion of recruit training, the Army will have trained men ready to move into combat and support units in late summer and fall of 1963.

Otherwise, "the trained portion of the Army would drop significantly," when the men called in the Berlin buildup were released, the Pentagon said.

His Heart Sees

WARREN, Mich. (AP) — Henry Petrilli can't see his brand new, three-bedroom brick home, but he is happy to be in it just the same.

Sympathetic townspeople built the Petrillis' house in their spare time, donating their labor. It was custom - designed to eliminate hazards for the sightless.

Mikoyan, whose mission to Havana was reported to have been prolonged by difficulty in persuading Castro to give up 42 Soviet missiles and some 30 Ilyushin-28 jet bombers, said:

"I am satisfied with my Cuban visit and the Cuban government also is satisfied . . . I was willing to meet the people and to talk to them and to make their acquaintance."

Mikoyan said the Cuban people "totally support" Castro's government.

Sarraut, a long-time leader of the French radical party, served as premier from October to November in 1933 and again from January to June in 1936.

Six More Germans Escape To West

BERLIN (UPI) — Six East Germans fled to West Berlin Monday, to bring the number of those escaped to 16 since Friday night.

West Berlin police said three swam an icy border river Saturday, seven crept through barbed wire Sunday, and six more stole through barbed wire Monday.

Border vigilance was believed lax due to cold and snow.

Ocean City, Md. Battens Down For Big Storm

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—This Atlantic resort battened down Monday night for a storm that was expected to bring winds gusting over 50 miles per hour and tides 4 or 5 feet above normal.

The weather bureau said the storm would bring serious beach erosion and considerable flooding along the Maryland coast at periods of peak tides.

High tides at Ocean City were at 7:47 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday.

Winds from the northeast were expected to strike the most vulnerable areas of the Atlantic beaches.

The weather bureau warned residents in low-lying areas to take precautions to avoid the effects of flooding.

Winds of up to 56 miles per hour were recorded in gusts at Cape Hatteras Monday afternoon. Vessels off the coast reported winds of more than 60 miles per hour.

Gale warnings were displayed from Wilmington, N. C., northward to Cape May, N. J., and small craft warnings extended south to Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Some Gooey Goodies For Calorie Counters

Clip this column and keep it handy for ready reference during this holiday season when you hanker for such delicacies as a pudding, a whipped topping for desserts, thousand island or French dressing.

You can toss your green salads as often as you like with a savory French dressing made this way: Combine and stir well 2 tbsp. canned tomato soup, 1 tbsp. tarragon vinegar, pinches of celery seed, salt and pepper, dashes of onion juice and Worcestershire.

A thousand-island-type dressing that can be indulged at will can be made by mixing 2 parts yogurt with 1 part pickle or India relish that has been well-drained.

A fruit salad tastes as luscious as it looks when topped with this whipped "cream": Stir 2 tbsp. yogurt with 1 tsp. honey and a pinch of salt. Go easy on the honey, however — 1 tbsp. equals 100 calories.

A delectable, low-calorie whipped topping for desserts is made by pouring ½ cup water into a quart mixing bowl and stirring in tbsp. lemon juice and 1 tsp. vanilla. Over this sprinkle ½ cup nonfat dry milk (skimmed milk powder) and beat until stiff. Sprinkle 3 tbsp. granulated sugar on surface and beat again (about 5 minutes) until the mixture holds in soft peaks.

For a dessert: Soften 1 tbsp. unflavored gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Let stand 5 minutes. Heat together ¾ cup water and ¾ cup sugar; stir constantly until sugar is dissolved. Remove from heat; add softened gelatin, ½ cup lime juice and 6 to 8 drops certified green food coloring. Stir until gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Chill until mixture is slightly thickened. Pour ½ cup water and 1 tbsp. lemon juice into a quart bowl and sprinkle ½ cup nonfat dry milk over the surface. Beat with rotary or electric beater for 8 to 10 minutes. Fold whipped nonfat dry milk into gelatin mixture. Pour into 1½-qt. mold or pile into sherbet glasses and chill until firm.

Garnish with the whipping topping, slices of lime and sprigs of mint. The frosty effect will bring bravos and repeat calls from the entire family. While you bask in your culinary prowess, you can help yourself to this masterpiece generously—one serving contains only 110 calories!

Some Gooey Goodies For Calorie Counters

Clip this column and keep it handy for ready reference during this holiday season when you hanker for such delicacies as a pudding, a whipped topping for desserts, thousand island or French dressing.

You can toss your green salads as often as you like with a savory French dressing made this way: Combine and stir well 2 tbsp. canned tomato soup, 1 tbsp. tarragon vinegar, pinches of celery seed, salt and pepper, dashes of onion juice and Worcestershire.

A thousand-island-type dressing that can be indulged at will can be made by mixing 2 parts yogurt with 1 part pickle or India relish that has been well-drained.

A fruit salad tastes as luscious as it looks when topped with this whipped "cream": Stir 2 tbsp. yogurt with 1 tsp. honey and a pinch of salt. Go easy on the honey, however — 1 tbsp. equals 100 calories.

A delectable, low-calorie whipped topping for desserts is made by pouring ½ cup water into a quart mixing bowl and stirring in tbsp. lemon juice and 1 tsp. vanilla. Over this sprinkle ½ cup nonfat dry milk (skimmed milk powder) and beat until stiff. Sprinkle 3 tbsp. granulated sugar on surface and beat again (about 5 minutes) until the mixture holds in soft peaks.

For a dessert: Soften 1 tbsp. unflavored gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Let stand 5 minutes. Heat together ¾ cup water and ¾ cup sugar; stir constantly until sugar is dissolved. Remove from heat; add softened gelatin, ½ cup lime juice and 6 to 8 drops certified green food coloring. Stir until gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Chill until mixture is slightly thickened. Pour ½ cup water and 1 tbsp. lemon juice into a quart bowl and sprinkle ½ cup nonfat dry milk over the surface. Beat with rotary or electric beater for 8 to 10 minutes. Fold whipped nonfat dry milk into gelatin mixture. Pour into 1½-qt. mold or pile into sherbet glasses and chill until firm.

Garnish with the whipping topping, slices of lime and sprigs of mint. The frosty effect will bring bravos and repeat calls from the entire family. While you bask in your culinary prowess, you can help yourself to this masterpiece generously—one serving contains only 110 calories!

LaVale Firemen Planning To Build New Engine House

The LaVale Volunteer Fire Company announced yesterday plans to construct another engine house in the upper end of the growing community.

Paul A. Boch, president, said the present fire hall that houses the company's two pumpers and equipment truck will continue to be the department's headquarters.

The new engine house, which will be used for housing a pumper, will be constructed in the near future on a lot at the intersection of Warfield Place and National Highway.

The LaVale Zoning Board recently granted permission for the location of fire department engine houses in residential areas providing that the buildings be used only for the housing of equipment.

Boch pointed out that much vital time can be saved in times of fire in that end of the community when the engine house is constructed.

He said, for instance, five minutes will be cut off the answering time to Sunset View from the new engine house in comparison to the time that it would take from the fire hall which is located about two miles east on the National Highway.

Once a call is received, under the system that will become effective when the new building is in operation, the 15 firemen living in that end of the community will respond to the siren that is located there.

For several years, there have been two sirens, one on the fire hall and the other in the vicinity of where the new engine house will be erected.

Once in the pumper, the firemen will get the location of the fire from two-way radios that are installed in the three vehicles.

Boch pointed out that the rapid expansion of LaVale has caused a demand for another engine house.

He cited the growth of such developments as Coverwood, Sunset View, Weires Addition, the two shopping centers and the new stores and markets.

The LaVale company has had its headquarters in the fire hall since 1939. Prior to that time, the fire truck was housed in an addition to the old James Clarke Distilling Company building.

No Pushers For Brooms

PARIS (AP) — Paris municipal officials have a problem with automation a little different from the usual one.

This time, the machines are not putting men out of jobs. Rather, the city is going to start using motorized street sweepers because it can't find enough men to hire for the job.

Officials plan to substitute the new-type machines for the man with the broom in the very near future.

Ancients Cut Chaff

LINARDS, France (AP) — A farmer near here has found a prehistoric chaff cutter.

The tool, which was found by Andre Duchez while working on his farm, was still in good shape. It is three inches long and .8 inches wide, with a blade of 1.6 inches.

Two Westernport Youths Arrested In Car Thefts

The Maryland State Police have broken up a stolen car ring with the arrest of two Westernport teenagers.

Tfc. Bruce Diehl of the Maryland State Police said the boys, one 16 years of age and the other 15, will be turned over to Juvenile Court for further action.

Tfc. Diehl, who was assisted in the investigation by Trooper R. William Andrews and city police from Westernport and Luke, said the youths have admitted to stealing the cars for "joy rides."

Eight of the vehicles were stolen from the parking lot of the Luke Mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, while the ninth was taken from inside the town of Westernport.

Authorities said only one of the vehicles was damaged and that in every case the owners left their keys in the car.

Police have charged the owners of the vehicles for leaving their keys in the cars.

Tfc Diehl said the youths would ride the cars around for a couple hours or until they ran out of gas.

Authorities said one of the biggest mistakes the youths made was when they developed car trouble and abandoned the vehicle in front of the residence of Tfc Diehl in Westernport.

Victims of the case are as follows:

Rodney King, Deer Park; Robert McGoye, 110 West Vairview Street, Piedmont; Marie E. Mazzone, 331 Pratt Street, Luke; Maurice R. Bennett, RD 1, Westernport; Thomas Moyer, RD 4, Keyser; Thomas P. Walsh, 321 Pratt Street, Luke; Gregory Barcase, Westernport, and James R. Coleman, Piedmont.

County Youth Unit Meets Tonight

The Allegany County Youth Commission will meet today at 7:30 p. m. at the Department of Employment Security office, North Mechanic Street, with the newly-elected chairman, Mrs. Charles L. Kopp, presiding.

Other officers named recently are Francis Kenney, vice chairman; Mrs. Jack Yankelevitz, secretary, and Cpl. John Browning, treasurer.

New members of the board of directors are Mrs. A. J. Mirkin, Robert O. Collins, Mrs. Elsie Hill Roland, Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie and John Allison. They join holdover board members Dr. William Van Newkirk, Dr. William Allen, Mrs. Harold Everline, Mrs. Jennie Graham, Fred H. Anderson, Miss Esther Carter, George Henderson, Mrs. Lester McGill and Mrs. Arthur C. Crum.

Student directors are Carl Belt and Tom Miller, Allegany High School; Sharon Sampson, Fort Hill High School; Maryann Martin, Catholic Girls' Central; Kenneth Diaz, Bruce High School, and Byron McCage, LaSalle.

Sentencing Is Withheld In Series Of Larcenies Here

Two Cumberland youths were tried in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday on four separate charges of larceny.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris presided and ordered a presentence investigation on the two, Donald Elwood Duffy, 18, of 705 Elm Street, and Eric Drake Gibbs, 19, of 514 Washington Street.

The youths were committed to the Allegany County Jail pending completion of the investigation by James Lewis, probation officer for Allegany County.

Attorneys Gorman Getty and Thomas Berry entered pleas of nolo contendere for the youths.

They were charged in connection with the thefts of a public address system from Central YMCA, a two-way radio from John Kastner, 617 Patterson Avenue; a two-way radio from a State Police cruiser and a box of tools owned by John Prendergast of 822 Columbia Avenue.

Testimony in the case yesterday revealed the two youths were together on the night of October 29 when they started on their "spree."

In statements given to Capt. James E. Van of the Cumberland Police Department, Duffy admitted to stealing the public address speaker from the Central YMCA and Kastner's two-way radio.

In his statement, Duffy implicated Gibbs for stealing the radio from the State Police cruiser and Prendergast's box of tools.

Total value of the property stolen was set at $435 by the State's Attorney's Office which filed the charges.

Donald W. Mason, deputy state's attorney, presented the state's case yesterday.

Paul A. Boch, president, said the present fire hall that houses the company's two pumpers and equipment truck will continue to be the department's headquarters.

The new engine house, which will be used for housing a pumper, will be constructed in the near future on a lot at the intersection of Warfield Place and National Highway.

The LaVale Zoning Board recently granted permission for the location of fire department engine houses in residential areas providing that the buildings be used only for the housing of equipment.

Boch pointed out that much vital time can be saved in times of fire in that end of the community when the engine house is constructed.

He said, for instance, five minutes will be cut off the answering time to Sunset View from the new engine house in comparison to the time that it would take from the fire hall which is located about two miles east on the National Highway.

Once a call is received, under the system that will become effective when the new building is in operation, the 15 firemen living in that end of the community will respond to the siren that is located there.

For several years, there have been two sirens, one on the fire hall and the other in the vicinity of where the new engine house will be erected.

Once in the pumper, the firemen will get the location of the fire from two-way radios that are installed in the three vehicles.

Boch pointed out that the rapid expansion of LaVale has caused a demand for another engine house.

He cited the growth of such developments as Coverwood, Sunset View, Weires Addition, the two shopping centers and the new stores and markets.

The LaVale company has had its headquarters in the fire hall since 1939. Prior to that time, the fire truck was housed in an addition to the old James Clarke Distilling Company building.

No Pushers For Brooms

PARIS (AP) — Paris municipal officials have a problem with automation a little different from the usual one.

This time, the machines are not putting men out of jobs. Rather, the city is going to start using motorized street sweepers because it can't find enough men to hire for the job.

Officials plan to substitute the new-type machines for the man with the broom in the very near future.

Two Westernport Youths Arrested In Car Thefts

The Maryland State Police have broken up a stolen car ring with the arrest of two Westernport teenagers.

Tfc. Bruce Diehl of the Maryland State Police said the boys, one 16 years of age and the other 15, will be turned over to Juvenile Court for further action.

Tfc. Diehl, who was assisted in the investigation by Trooper R. William Andrews and city police from Westernport and Luke, said the youths have admitted to stealing the cars for "joy rides."

Eight of the vehicles were stolen from the parking lot of the Luke Mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, while the ninth was taken from inside the town of Westernport.

Authorities said only one of the vehicles was damaged and that in every case the owners left their keys in the car.

Police have charged the owners of the vehicles for leaving their keys in the cars.

Tfc Diehl said the youths would ride the cars around for a couple hours or until they ran out of gas.

Authorities said one of the biggest mistakes the youths made was when they developed car trouble and abandoned the vehicle in front of the residence of Tfc Diehl in Westernport.

Victims of the case are as follows:

Rodney King, Deer Park; Robert McGoye, 110 West Vairview Street, Piedmont; Marie E. Mazzone, 331 Pratt Street, Luke; Maurice R. Bennett, RD 1, Westernport; Thomas Moyer, RD 4, Keyser; Thomas P. Walsh, 321 Pratt Street, Luke; Gregory Barcase, Westernport, and James R. Coleman, Piedmont.

Sentencing Is Withheld In Series Of Larcenies Here

Two Cumberland youths were tried in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday on four separate charges of larceny.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris presided and ordered a presentence investigation on the two, Donald Elwood Duffy, 18, of 705 Elm Street, and Eric Drake Gibbs, 19, of 514 Washington Street.

The youths were committed to the Allegany County Jail pending completion of the investigation by James Lewis, probation officer for Allegany County.

Attorneys Gorman Getty and Thomas Berry entered pleas of nolo contendere for the youths.

They were charged in connection with the thefts of a public address system from Central YMCA, a two-way radio from John Kastner, 617 Patterson Avenue; a two-way radio from a State Police cruiser and a box of tools owned by John Prendergast of 822 Columbia Avenue.

Testimony in the case yesterday revealed the two youths were together on the night of October 29 when they started on their "spree."

In statements given to Capt. James E. Van of the Cumberland Police Department, Duffy admitted to stealing the public address speaker from the Central YMCA and Kastner's two-way radio.

In his statement, Duffy implicated Gibbs for stealing the radio from the State Police cruiser and Prendergast's box of tools.

Total value of the property stolen was set at $435 by the State's Attorney's Office which filed the charges.

Donald W. Mason, deputy state's attorney, presented the state's case yesterday.

Mayor, Council Discuss Curb, Sidewalk Program

A curb and sidewalk program was proposed yesterday by Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder incorporating (1) local-federal participation or (2) a strictly local project.

In ensuing discussion, the Mayor and Council agreed to look into possibilities of such a program but delayed discussion of enforcement problems until such time as Police Commissioner William V. Keegan was present to state his views. Keegan was absent yesterday because he was attending a funeral.

Mrs. Roeder in proposing the program cited unsightly curbs and sidewalks which exist and also pointed out a safety problem as a result.

She said she thought the city should look into the possibility of getting assistance under the federal Works Acceleration Act passed last September; or think of setting up some program locally, "even if it has to be on a 50-50 basis" since "we cannot have a real street program unless we have curbs and sidewalks."

She said she knew there are many details to be worked out and that the program should be routed through existing planning groups which are also setting up improvement programs here.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney said he also thought something should be done but was of the feeling such work had been the prerogative of the property owner in the past. In addition, what looks like a few thousands of dollars can eventually mean hundreds of thousands of dollars unless the city approaches the problem in a light manner.

Mrs. Roeder said, however, that a study should be made instead of letting the curb and sidewalk situation go on from year to year. At this point, she mentioned the fact that cars and trucks were being allowed to park on sidewalks to their deterioration and suggested that perhaps enforcement was the answer.

Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill said he believed the suggestion should be looked into but felt that the property owner should be responsible for his own property. Hill said he did not expect others to share in the cost of improving his property.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum cited a case downtown where an owner, who resided out-of-town, was notified of a bad sidewalk condition. The owner notified the city that when it was able to keep cars and trucks off the sidewalk, he would have it repaired.

Mayor Chaney said he had no doubt trucks and cars are parking on sidewalks all over town and Nuzum pointed out that the city requires truckers, delivering coal or other heavy loads, to get a permit to pass over a sidewalk to unload. In addition, he said, the trucker must have the property owner's permission.

When further discussion of enforcement was started, Commissioner Hill said he would prefer to wait until Keegan returned so that he could have his say concerning a matter in his department. Chief B. Frank Gaffney agreed with this.

The matter was kept open until next week's council meeting but it was agreed to look into the possibility of federal aid or a local program for improvement of curbs and sidewalks.

Mrs. Roeder said upon completion of a study and setting up a program, money should be included in next year's appropriation for the project.

Lions Club Finance Unit Meeting Set

The finance committee of the Cumberland Lions Club will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the George Williams Room of Central YMCA to consider requests for funds.

The committee is comprised of Allen Steiner, chairman; William R. Carscaden, Arthur Crum, Henry K. Duke, Woodward D. Pealer and Harry A. Smith Jr.

This group administers the funds raised for local worthy projects through the annual Cumberland Sports Car Races.

At last week's meeting of the board of directors, reports were made to show the extent of the Lions Club activities.

During October, 18 eye examinations, 29 pairs of eye glasses and 12 glass repairs were made along with one tonsilectomy afforded needy school children.

The board reactivated the ceiling projector project with William F. Taylor as chairman assisted by Roy Spradlin.

Through these devices, patients who are bedfast can read books. The pages are projected onto the ceilings of their rooms.

The Lions Club has three of the projectors and 398 microfilmed books.

The board also voted to sponsor again the University of Tulsa Choir.

Wednesday, December 19, has been set as the date for the annual kiddie Christmas party under the direction of the boys' and girls' work committee.

Railroad Trainmen To Canvass Votes

Meter Receipts Drop

Parking meter receipts decreased $220.25 during the period November 11-18. The decline was due to the Thanksgiving holiday. Receipts the week of November 18 were $702.25 compared to $922.50 the week of November 11, Inspector Harry Whisner reported to the Mayor and Council.

If West had been able to gain a glimpse of the declarer's holding before playing to the second trick in today's hand, he could have foiled the latter's wily maneuvering with complete ease. However, failure to anticipate South's strategy can hardly be charged up as an error against West's account.

North and South reached their three no trump contract in easy stages, and West made the normal opening of the jack of spades. East signaled encouragingly with the eight, and declarer found himself confronted with a gloomy prospect. Altho he had nine top tricks—six diamonds, one heart, and two spades—nature had constructed a roadblock in the diamond suit which West unwittingly activated with his spade lead.

If declarer won the first trick, he would have no sure means of regaining access to his hand to run the diamonds after North's top honors in that suit were cashed. It would require no special acumen on the part of the defenders to size up the situation subsequently and, by abandoning the spade suit, force South to play the balance of the hand from the dummy.

Declarer realized that if he were to avoid alerting his opponents to the snarl in traffic which had befallen him, he must do his maneuvering early in the play. He saw further that, provided he ducked the opening lead and West continued the attack in spades, there would be an opportunity to dispose of North's blocking diamond honors.

South accordingly followed to the jack of spades with the three from his hand. West continued with the four of spades and, as declarer cashed the ace and king, he discarded the ace, king of diamonds from the dummy. When South's high diamonds picked up the outstanding cards in the suit, he ran for cover with his nine tricks.

Just one more case in which the hand was quicker than the eye.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Apparently another great film is heading our way from Greece. This is "Electra," starring Irene Papas, and like that other Greek sleeper of last season's box-office fame "Never On Sunday," "Electra" was made for very little money. It has already won top prizes at the Cannes, Edinburgh, Venice and Salonika film festivals, and my news today is that Miss Papas and Michael Cacoyannis, the director of "Electra", will be in Hollywood December 9th. Their film will be the official Greek entry for our Oscar derby, come spring.

This Papas-Cacoyannis relationship is purely professional, and not romantic like that of Jules Dallin and Melina Mercouri of "Never On Sunday," though interestingly, Cacoyannis is the actual discoverer of the lissome Melina. Miss Papas, of course, has been in Hollywood before, not too happily several years back, at MGM where they put her in a Western.

Few plays have ever had a fiercer beating from the New York critics than "Come On Strong" which starred Van Johnson and Carroll Baker on Broadway last season. Nobody—but nobody—liked it except the public, which kept coming to see Van and Carroll.

The play completely revived Van's career to such an extent that now he is making "The 27th Wife" for Hal Wallis. Miss Baker has had several films offered to her, but is waiting to see what "How The West Was Won" does for her professionally.

All this makes it not in the least surprising that Garson Kanin and Carroll's husband, Jack Garfein, are now doing a movie script on "Come On Strong" for production next summer. And whom do you think it will star? Van and Carroll, of course.

Franklin Schaffner flew into Hollywood over the weekend to huddle with Kirk Douglas over the possibility of his playing "The Healer", the story of a man in search of faith.

Schaffner is not only the bright young producer who guided Jackie Kennedy through her TV paces for that White House tour, but he also just finished Joanne Woodward's "Woman In July" for Twentieth Century-Fox.

Now he aims to be a top film producer and has incorporated himself under the name of "Gilcrist Productions" and bought "The Healer" by Loring Mandel.

If Kirk says yes, Schaffner will start shooting early next year in the picture's real settings in rural Pennsylvania.

Although I had talked to both Marty Melcher and Doris Day a month ago regarding rumors of their separation (which they denied), the talk has persisted. I spoke to Marty again about his going to Europe without Doris.

"I want to say that the trip is in Doris' interest," said Marty. "Her next picture for our company will be filmed either in Rome or London, and I'm going over to prepare for it. It will be Doris' only picture out of the U.S. except for 'The Man Who Knew Too Much', which she made several years ago for Alfred Hitchcock. So no one can say we have catered to runaway production, and we've done our part to keep the Hollywood home fires burning. But the new movie has a definite foreign locale."

I certainly do admire the go-getter impulse of today's actors. Vic Morrow, who was such a standout in "Blackboard Jungle" and currently is a big hit in TV's "Combat" series, had formed his own independent movie production company in partnership with Richard Donner, the director, who just finished guiding Frank Sinatra's "X-15."

Vic and Donner have bought themselves a story called "The Devil To Pay," which concerns today's Greenwich Village life. They will put it into production when Vic gets his vacation from "Combat," with Vic starring, of course, and Donner directing and producing.

LaVale Firemen Nominate Tonight

The LaVale Volunteer Fire Department will nominate officers at a meeting today at 7:30 p. m. at the Fire Hall.

Paul Boch, company president, said that additional nominations can be made at the meeting December 11 at 7:30 p. m. and that the general election will follow.

The fire company answered three alarms in recent weeks with one being a flue fire and the other two brush blazes. A report was given on the basic firefighting course by members taking the training each Monday night.

City Names Insurance Consultant

The Mayor and Council yesterday appointed Henry K. Duke as insurance and risk management consultant at a fee of $1,000 a year.

Duke, a licensed insurance consultant, will study risks to which operations of the city are exposed and make recommendations to council indicating what, in his opinion, would be the most effective means of facing these risks.

One of his first duties, according to Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill, will be to study proposals made by a number of companies concerning revision of the city employe insurance program.

Duke's appointment is effective December 1.

In another personnel matter, council accepter the retirement of Sgt. Charles C. Roby as a member of the Police Department effective December 11 and ordered that he be placed on pension as of December 12.

In other action, council approved final payment of $4,175 as its share in accordance with a third party contract with the State of Maryland and State Planning Department under the Cumberland Urban Planning Assistance Program which is underway.

Payment of $20,390 to Cumberland Contracting Company for improving North Centre and North Mechanic streets was authorized.

An order awarding to Koontz Equipment Corporation the contract for two salt and cinder spreaders for the Street Department was rescinded because the company is not the franchised dealer in the area. Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, said the next bid was only 40 cents higher and submitted an order awarding the bid to McClung-Logan Equipment Company for $1,075.

The bid of Clarence W. Sarver of $750 for plots 7-8-9-11-13-14 in Ridgedale Addition was accepted.

Council received an invitation from George A. Caswell, chairman, to attend the memorial service of Cumberland Lodge 63, B.P.O. Elks Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the lodge home, South Centre Street.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a minister who has officiated at more than 600 funerals I would like to add my voice to your disapproval of flashbulb pictures and movies at funeral parlors.

Such barbarism has developed because we have become apathetic toward our Hebrew and Christian teachings. We have permitted undertakers to Egyptianize our techniques of disposing of the dead. Instead of exalting the spirit, we, like the ancient Pharaohs, glorify the body. We lavish it with cosmetics and place it on display.

Too often a grief-stricken family, overcome by emotional strain will go deep into debt for an expensive casket and all the trimmings. It's almost as if they are attempting to make up to the deceased for what they failed to do during his lifetime.

One day, when our values have truly matured, we will abandon these primitive customs which serve no purpose. —D. L.

DEAR D. L.: Many thanks for your civilized letter. I agree that lavish funerals do nothing for the one who has departed this life. He neither hears the music, smells the flowers, nor does he see the satin-lined, silver-handled casket.

The living need love, kindness and understanding. The dead need only our prayers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 22 years old and have never been so head-over-heels in love in my life. I'm walking on air, Ann. The man is 30, has beautiful wavy hair and a perfect build.

I want to marry him and he is begging me to say yes, but I am not quite ready to make the leap because of three things:

(1) He drinks a little too much and sometimes forgets where I live, where he parked the car, where he put his wallet, etc.

(2) He likes to job-hop. He has no trouble getting a job, but after a few months he becomes bored and quits.

(3) He teases me a lot which is very cute — says things that aren't true just to get my reaction. Later he tells me he was only fooling.

I am willing to overlook his faults because I know nobody is perfect. He is the most exciting man who ever lived. He says marriage will change him. Will it? —IVORY

DEAR IVORY: Congratulations—an offer of marriage from a job-hopping lush with a faulty memory.

Marriage won't change HIM, but it will change YOU. You won't find him so thrilling when he forgets to bring home a pay check. The teasing and spells of unemployment won't be so cute when you have children to feed and doctor bills to pay. If you want a thoroughly messed up life go ahead and marry a guy because his hair is wavy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was delighted when you told off that smart-aleck, 12-year-old who signed herself "Well-Mannered Girl!" She complained that dining at home was becoming unpleasant because her parents talked with food in their mouths.

I was not born in this country so perhaps I have no right to speak, but I am appalled at the number of American youngsters who are downright cheeky to their parents.

Since the 12-year-old seemed preoccupied with manners I should like to point out that a person of taste is satisfied that he knows how to conduct himself. He does not pose as a model of perfection nor does he burden others with his display of knowledge.

The epitome of good manners is to make those around us comfortable. — LONDON OBSERVER

DEAR OBSERVER: Thank you for a fine letter. Have you noticed that American kids are less cheeky than they used to be? The permissive approach, happily, is disappearing — and being replaced by old-fashined discipline.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Three Juveniles Are Arraigned

Three Keyser juveniles were arraigned yesterday before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle on charges of breaking and entering Norman Porter's Barber Shop, Center Street, last Wednesday.

The youngsters were released to the custody of their parents for juvenile court action.

State Police said the three youths, two of whom are 17 years old and the other 15, gained entrance through a screen and swing-in window at the side of the barbershop.

The youths allegedly took $351 cash.

City and State Police investigated.

Hearings Scheduled For Two Youths

Two boys, aged 15 and 16, are scheduled to be given hearings today in Juvenile Court for breaking into and entering a home in LaVale.

Tfc. Donald Wade of the State Police apprehended the teenagers while they were inside the Park Avenue home after he received a call that someone had seem them enter the dwelling.

In ensuing discussion, the Mayor and Council agreed to look into possibilities of such a program but delayed discussion of enforcement problems until such time as Police Commissioner William V. Keegan was present to state his views. Keegan was absent yesterday because he was attending a funeral.

Mrs. Roeder in proposing the program cited unsightly curbs and sidewalks which exist and also pointed out a safety problem as a result.

She said she thought the city should look into the possibility of getting assistance under the federal Works Acceleration Act passed last September; or think of setting up some program locally, "even if it has to be on a 50-50 basis" since "we cannot have a real street program unless we have curbs and sidewalks."

She said she knew there are many details to be worked out and that the program should be routed through existing planning groups which are also setting up improvement programs here.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney said he also thought something should be done but was of the feeling such work had been the prerogative of the property owner in the past. In addition, what looks like a few thousands of dollars can eventually mean hundreds of thousands of dollars unless the city approaches the problem in a light manner.

Mrs. Roeder said, however, that a study should be made instead of letting the curb and sidewalk situation go on from year to year. At this point, she mentioned the fact that cars and trucks were being allowed to park on sidewalks to their deterioration and suggested that perhaps enforcement was the answer.

Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill said he believed the suggestion should be looked into but felt that the property owner should be responsible for his own property. Hill said he did not expect others to share in the cost of improving his property.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum cited a case downtown where an owner, who resided out-of-town, was notified of a bad sidewalk condition. The owner notified the city that when it was able to keep cars and trucks off the sidewalk, he would have it repaired.

Mayor Chaney said he had no doubt trucks and cars are parking on sidewalks all over town and Nuzum pointed out that the city requires truckers, delivering coal or other heavy loads, to get a permit to pass over a sidewalk to unload. In addition, he said, the trucker must have the property owner's permission.

When further discussion of enforcement was started, Commissioner Hill said he would prefer to wait until Keegan returned so that he could have his say concerning a matter in his department. Chief B. Frank Gaffney agreed with this.

The matter was kept open until next week's council meeting but it was agreed to look into the possibility of federal aid or a local program for improvement of curbs and sidewalks.

Mrs. Roeder said upon completion of a study and setting up a program, money should be included in next year's appropriation for the project.

Lions Club Finance Unit Meeting Set

The finance committee of the Cumberland Lions Club will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the George Williams Room of Central YMCA to consider requests for funds.

The committee is comprised of Allen Steiner, chairman; William R. Carscaden, Arthur Crum, Henry K. Duke, Woodward D. Pealer and Harry A. Smith Jr.

This group administers the funds raised for local worthy projects through the annual Cumberland Sports Car Races.

At last week's meeting of the board of directors, reports were made to show the extent of the Lions Club activities.

During October, 18 eye examinations, 29 pairs of eye glasses and 12 glass repairs were made along with one tonsilectomy afforded needy school children.

The board reactivated the ceiling projector project with William F. Taylor as chairman assisted by Roy Spradlin.

Through these devices, patients who are bedfast can read books. The pages are projected onto the ceilings of their rooms.

The Lions Club has three of the projectors and 398 microfilmed books.

The board also voted to sponsor again the University of Tulsa Choir.

Wednesday, December 19, has been set as the date for the annual kiddie Christmas party under the direction of the boys' and girls' work committee.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

If West had been able to gain a glimpse of the declarer's holding before playing to the second trick in today's hand, he could have foiled the latter's wily maneuvering with complete ease. However, failure to anticipate South's strategy can hardly be charged up as an error against West's account.

North and South reached their three no trump contract in easy stages, and West made the normal opening of the jack of spades. East signaled encouragingly with the eight, and declarer found himself confronted with a gloomy prospect. Altho he had nine top tricks—six diamonds, one heart, and two spades—nature had constructed a roadblock in the diamond suit which West unwittingly activated with his spade lead.

If declarer won the first trick, he would have no sure means of regaining access to his hand to run the diamonds after North's top honors in that suit were cashed. It would require no special acumen on the part of the defenders to size up the situation subsequently and, by abandoning the spade suit, force South to play the balance of the hand from the dummy.

Declarer realized that if he were to avoid alerting his opponents to the snarl in traffic which had befallen him, he must do his maneuvering early in the play. He saw further that, provided he ducked the opening lead and West continued the attack in spades, there would be an opportunity to dispose of North's blocking diamond honors.

South accordingly followed to the jack of spades with the three from his hand. West continued with the four of spades and, as declarer cashed the ace and king, he discarded the ace, king of diamonds from the dummy. When South's high diamonds picked up the outstanding cards in the suit, he ran for cover with his nine tricks.

Just one more case in which the hand was quicker than the eye.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Apparently another great film is heading our way from Greece. This is "Electra," starring Irene Papas, and like that other Greek sleeper of last season's box-office fame "Never On Sunday," "Electra" was made for very little money. It has already won top prizes at the Cannes, Edinburgh, Venice and Salonika film festivals, and my news today is that Miss Papas and Michael Cacoyannis, the director of "Electra", will be in Hollywood December 9th. Their film will be the official Greek entry for our Oscar derby, come spring.

This Papas-Cacoyannis relationship is purely professional, and not romantic like that of Jules Dallin and Melina Mercouri of "Never On Sunday," though interestingly, Cacoyannis is the actual discoverer of the lissome Melina. Miss Papas, of course, has been in Hollywood before, not too happily several years back, at MGM where they put her in a Western.

Few plays have ever had a fiercer beating from the New York critics than "Come On Strong" which starred Van Johnson and Carroll Baker on Broadway last season. Nobody—but nobody—liked it except the public, which kept coming to see Van and Carroll.

The play completely revived Van's career to such an extent that now he is making "The 27th Wife" for Hal Wallis. Miss Baker has had several films offered to her, but is waiting to see what "How The West Was Won" does for her professionally.

All this makes it not in the least surprising that Garson Kanin and Carroll's husband, Jack Garfein, are now doing a movie script on "Come On Strong" for production next summer. And whom do you think it will star? Van and Carroll, of course.

Franklin Schaffner flew into Hollywood over the weekend to huddle with Kirk Douglas over the possibility of his playing "The Healer", the story of a man in search of faith.

Schaffner is not only the bright young producer who guided Jackie Kennedy through her TV paces for that White House tour, but he also just finished Joanne Woodward's "Woman In July" for Twentieth Century-Fox.

Now he aims to be a top film producer and has incorporated himself under the name of "Gilcrist Productions" and bought "The Healer" by Loring Mandel.

If Kirk says yes, Schaffner will start shooting early next year in the picture's real settings in rural Pennsylvania.

Although I had talked to both Marty Melcher and Doris Day a month ago regarding rumors of their separation (which they denied), the talk has persisted. I spoke to Marty again about his going to Europe without Doris.

"I want to say that the trip is in Doris' interest," said Marty. "Her next picture for our company will be filmed either in Rome or London, and I'm going over to prepare for it. It will be Doris' only picture out of the U.S. except for 'The Man Who Knew Too Much', which she made several years ago for Alfred Hitchcock. So no one can say we have catered to runaway production, and we've done our part to keep the Hollywood home fires burning. But the new movie has a definite foreign locale."

I certainly do admire the go-getter impulse of today's actors. Vic Morrow, who was such a standout in "Blackboard Jungle" and currently is a big hit in TV's "Combat" series, had formed his own independent movie production company in partnership with Richard Donner, the director, who just finished guiding Frank Sinatra's "X-15."

Vic and Donner have bought themselves a story called "The Devil To Pay," which concerns today's Greenwich Village life. They will put it into production when Vic gets his vacation from "Combat," with Vic starring, of course, and Donner directing and producing.

LaVale Firemen Nominate Tonight

The LaVale Volunteer Fire Department will nominate officers at a meeting today at 7:30 p. m. at the Fire Hall.

Paul Boch, company president, said that additional nominations can be made at the meeting December 11 at 7:30 p. m. and that the general election will follow.

The fire company answered three alarms in recent weeks with one being a flue fire and the other two brush blazes. A report was given on the basic firefighting course by members taking the training each Monday night.

City Names Insurance Consultant

The Mayor and Council yesterday appointed Henry K. Duke as insurance and risk management consultant at a fee of $1,000 a year.

Duke, a licensed insurance consultant, will study risks to which operations of the city are exposed and make recommendations to council indicating what, in his opinion, would be the most effective means of facing these risks.

One of his first duties, according to Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill, will be to study proposals made by a number of companies concerning revision of the city employe insurance program.

Duke's appointment is effective December 1.

In another personnel matter, council accepter the retirement of Sgt. Charles C. Roby as a member of the Police Department effective December 11 and ordered that he be placed on pension as of December 12.

In other action, council approved final payment of $4,175 as its share in accordance with a third party contract with the State of Maryland and State Planning Department under the Cumberland Urban Planning Assistance Program which is underway.

Payment of $20,390 to Cumberland Contracting Company for improving North Centre and North Mechanic streets was authorized.

An order awarding to Koontz Equipment Corporation the contract for two salt and cinder spreaders for the Street Department was rescinded because the company is not the franchised dealer in the area. Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, said the next bid was only 40 cents higher and submitted an order awarding the bid to McClung-Logan Equipment Company for $1,075.

The bid of Clarence W. Sarver of $750 for plots 7-8-9-11-13-14 in Ridgedale Addition was accepted.

Council received an invitation from George A. Caswell, chairman, to attend the memorial service of Cumberland Lodge 63, B.P.O. Elks Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the lodge home, South Centre Street.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a minister who has officiated at more than 600 funerals I would like to add my voice to your disapproval of flashbulb pictures and movies at funeral parlors.

Such barbarism has developed because we have become apathetic toward our Hebrew and Christian teachings. We have permitted undertakers to Egyptianize our techniques of disposing of the dead. Instead of exalting the spirit, we, like the ancient Pharaohs, glorify the body. We lavish it with cosmetics and place it on display.

Too often a grief-stricken family, overcome by emotional strain will go deep into debt for an expensive casket and all the trimmings. It's almost as if they are attempting to make up to the deceased for what they failed to do during his lifetime.

One day, when our values have truly matured, we will abandon these primitive customs which serve no purpose. —D. L.

DEAR D. L.: Many thanks for your civilized letter. I agree that lavish funerals do nothing for the one who has departed this life. He neither hears the music, smells the flowers, nor does he see the satin-lined, silver-handled casket.

The living need love, kindness and understanding. The dead need only our prayers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 22 years old and have never been so head-over-heels in love in my life. I'm walking on air, Ann. The man is 30, has beautiful wavy hair and a perfect build.

I want to marry him and he is begging me to say yes, but I am not quite ready to make the leap because of three things:

(1) He drinks a little too much and sometimes forgets where I live, where he parked the car, where he put his wallet, etc.

(2) He likes to job-hop. He has no trouble getting a job, but after a few months he becomes bored and quits.

(3) He teases me a lot which is very cute — says things that aren't true just to get my reaction. Later he tells me he was only fooling.

I am willing to overlook his faults because I know nobody is perfect. He is the most exciting man who ever lived. He says marriage will change him. Will it? —IVORY

DEAR IVORY: Congratulations—an offer of marriage from a job-hopping lush with a faulty memory.

Marriage won't change HIM, but it will change YOU. You won't find him so thrilling when he forgets to bring home a pay check. The teasing and spells of unemployment won't be so cute when you have children to feed and doctor bills to pay. If you want a thoroughly messed up life go ahead and marry a guy because his hair is wavy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was delighted when you told off that smart-aleck, 12-year-old who signed herself "Well-Mannered Girl!" She complained that dining at home was becoming unpleasant because her parents talked with food in their mouths.

I was not born in this country so perhaps I have no right to speak, but I am appalled at the number of American youngsters who are downright cheeky to their parents.

Since the 12-year-old seemed preoccupied with manners I should like to point out that a person of taste is satisfied that he knows how to conduct himself. He does not pose as a model of perfection nor does he burden others with his display of knowledge.

The epitome of good manners is to make those around us comfortable. — LONDON OBSERVER

DEAR OBSERVER: Thank you for a fine letter. Have you noticed that American kids are less cheeky than they used to be? The permissive approach, happily, is disappearing — and being replaced by old-fashined discipline.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The youths allegedly took $351 cash.

City and State Police investigated.

Leighton-Durst Open New Funeral Home In Oakland

The Leighton-Durst Funeral Service has opened new quarters in Oakland, according to a joint announcement by Herbert C. Leighton and John O. (Jack) Durst, former local resident who became associated with the Garrett County business in October, 1961.

The funeral home is located at the intersection of Second and Pennington streets in Oakland. Formerly known as the Loar home, it was willed to West Virginia Wesleyan College following the death of the last member of the Loar family.

The home originally was intended for widows of retired Methodist ministers, but that plan did not materialize.

Completely remodeled and redecorated, the new Leighton-Durst home has facilities for four viewings besides a chapel, smoking lounge and powder room.

Durst was a funeral director here 20 years before moving to Oakland in 1961. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Olin Durst. His mother was the former Miss Margaret Sincell of Oakland.

He is married to the former Miss Ruth Marquis, and they have three sons. Durst is a graduate of Potomac State College, West Liberty College and the McAllister School of Embalming. He served in the Army from 1943 to 1946.

Leighton became a funeral director in 1933, being first located at Mt. Lake Park. He moved his business to Oakland two years later and built a brick structure which will continue to be used as a business office and showroom.

Portrait Of Artist

CATANIA, Sicily (AP)—A face painted on a vase is supposed to be Michelangelo's portrait. The vase, made by famous 16 Century Italian ceramist Giorgio da Gubbio, was donated by an Italian to the Civic Museum of Castello Uhsino, near here.

Prof. Enzo Maganuco of the Catania Atheneum, who made the discovery, said he believed the portrait was made in 1530, when both Michelangelo and da Gubbio were working for the Pope.

Leighton-Durst Open New Funeral Home In Oakland

The Leighton-Durst Funeral Service has opened new quarters in Oakland, according to a joint announcement by Herbert C. Leighton and John O. (Jack) Durst, former local resident who became associated with the Garrett County business in October, 1961.

The funeral home is located at the intersection of Second and Pennington streets in Oakland. Formerly known as the Loar home, it was willed to West Virginia Wesleyan College following the death of the last member of the Loar family.

The home originally was intended for widows of retired Methodist ministers, but that plan did not materialize.

Completely remodeled and redecorated, the new Leighton-Durst home has facilities for four viewings besides a chapel, smoking lounge and powder room.

Durst was a funeral director here 20 years before moving to Oakland in 1961. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Olin Durst. His mother was the former Miss Margaret Sincell of Oakland.

He is married to the former Miss Ruth Marquis, and they have three sons. Durst is a graduate of Potomac State College, West Liberty College and the McAllister School of Embalming. He served in the Army from 1943 to 1946.

Leighton became a funeral director in 1933, being first located at Mt. Lake Park. He moved his business to Oakland two years later and built a brick structure which will continue to be used as a business office and showroom.

Portrait Of Artist

CATANIA, Sicily (AP)—A face painted on a vase is supposed to be Michelangelo's portrait. The vase, made by famous 16 Century Italian ceramist Giorgio da Gubbio, was donated by an Italian to the Civic Museum of Castello Uhsino, near here.

Prof. Enzo Maganuco of the Catania Atheneum, who made the discovery, said he believed the portrait was made in 1530, when both Michelangelo and da Gubbio were working for the Pope.

Those suggesting candidates for the award are asked to bear in mind that consideration is made to those who have contributed to the good of the city outside of their normal professional or vocational pursuits without personal gain.

The award will be presented at a special program early in January.

Judge Cuppett Cites Need For Detention Home

KEYSER — A perturbed and concerned judge cited once again Saturday the county's need for a juvenile detention home when two young girls appeared before him as a result of a delinquency charge and then had to be returned to the custody of their mother because there was no place to send them.

Involved were two sisters, aged 13 and 12, who had been given a hearing earlier when it was discovered they had been living with their mother in the company of two men at a home in Piedmont. The three adults were charged later with contributing to the delinquency of the minor girls.

Officials here explained it was difficult to give a permanent address for the youngsters as they moved from place to place having previously lived in the Cross area, later in Westernport, and more recently they moved to a new location between Keyser and Piedmont. Court House workers said they understand the mother is now back in Piedmont.

A variety of stories came to light during the hearing indicating the girls had been subjected to inter-racial cohabitation, living in buildings that resembled chicken coops, not having access to bathroom facilities or electricity and at one place had to walk over a mile along railroad tracks to secure water suitable for household purposes.

Judge David E. Cuppett Jr., wanting to rid the girls of such an environment, was informed by Child Welfare Worker Vera Smith that no foster homes were available for the girls in the Piedmont area and very few in the county. The Court then said there was no alternative but to place the girls again with their mother, under supervision of the Court and the Child Welfare Department, until suitable arrangements could be made. Judge Cuppett said that had a juvenile detention home been available the girls could have been placed there under supervised care.

Final disposition has been tentatively scheduled for December 20 at 2:30 p.m.

W. Va. Traffic Deaths Worst Since 1955

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Police said Monday the 18 traffic deaths recorded in West Virginia last week were the highest on record for any week since at least 1955.

Seventeen of the deaths resulted from accidents that occurred during the 102-hour period from 6 p.m. on the eve of Thanksgiving through Sunday midnight. Twelve of the victims died in accidents that took two lives each.

The State Police Accident Prevention Bureau said a check of its records since 1955 showed that last week's total had not been reached during that eight - year period.

The state's highway toll for the year stood at 389 compared with 333 at the same date in 1961, and had already exceeded last year's 12-month total of 372, with one of the traditionally worst months remaining.

Five persons died during the 30-hour Thanksgiving holiday period, six were killed Friday and seven over the week end.

Latest victims were Peter Summerfield, 88, of Huntington, and his wife, Carrie, 84, who were struck by a car as they returned from church Sunday night. The woman died about an hour after the accident and her husband early Monday.

Also killed late Sunday were two young men whose car plunged into a creek in Wayne County. They were John Marcum, Fort Gay, and John J. Parsley, 22, of Crum. A third man in the car, James Parsley, 19, Hurricane, was pulled from the creek and was recovering in a hospital.

Snow Removal Bond Requested

Thomas W. Burton, 111 Sunset Drive, developer of that home site project, has been notified by the Allegany County Commissioners that since Sunset Drive will be entered into the county roads system next month, the county will not receive any subsidy for maintenance and snow removal from Maryland until July of next year.

Therefore it will be necessary for Mr. Burton to post bond of $500 with the commissioners for snow removal this winter.

In a letter to Mr. Burton from Ray J. Loar, assistant superintendent of the county roads department, it was pointed out that the cost of snow removal cannot be determined at this time but at the end of the snow removal season the cost of the service will be determined.

Upon the receipt of the sum, bond will be released. In default of payment the amount will be deducted from the bond, said Mr. Loar.

In other business matters Friday the commissioners were notified that rights of way for property in Frostburg were filed in the land records office by the Borden Mining Company.

The land is located in the Centennial Hill Addition in Frostburg and specifically on Lovell Avenue, Kemp Drive, Tisdale and Durfee street.

New Box Alarm To Be Placed At White Oaks

The Cumberland Fire Department will install a fire alarm box in the White Oaks area soon, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker.

He said the alarm is of the master type and will be installed as soon as plans for wiring are complete.

Chief Parker said the fire alarm box, No. 616, will be placed in the housing development and will be able to serve business establishments through auxiliary boxes.

Stores in the shopping center, he said, would have to purchase and install the auxiliary alarm devices, but the Fire Department would maintain them.

The new development is in South Cumberland Fire Company's territory but Chief Parker said that if the shopping center units install fire alarm equipment, the calls probably would be answered on first alarms by both South Cumberland and Central fire departments.

The city maintains about 100 box alarms controlled through equipment at Central Fire Department.

W. Va. Traffic Deaths Worst Since 1955

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Police said Monday the 18 traffic deaths recorded in West Virginia last week were the highest on record for any week since at least 1955.

Seventeen of the deaths resulted from accidents that occurred during the 102-hour period from 6 p.m. on the eve of Thanksgiving through Sunday midnight. Twelve of the victims died in accidents that took two lives each.

The State Police Accident Prevention Bureau said a check of its records since 1955 showed that last week's total had not been reached during that eight - year period.

The state's highway toll for the year stood at 389 compared with 333 at the same date in 1961, and had already exceeded last year's 12-month total of 372, with one of the traditionally worst months remaining.

Five persons died during the 30-hour Thanksgiving holiday period, six were killed Friday and seven over the week end.

Latest victims were Peter Summerfield, 88, of Huntington, and his wife, Carrie, 84, who were struck by a car as they returned from church Sunday night. The woman died about an hour after the accident and her husband early Monday.

Also killed late Sunday were two young men whose car plunged into a creek in Wayne County. They were John Marcum, Fort Gay, and John J. Parsley, 22, of Crum. A third man in the car, James Parsley, 19, Hurricane, was pulled from the creek and was recovering in a hospital.

Air Competition Of The Future

The six hours and 10 minutes scheduled flying time from Montreal to London by jet may be cut by more than half in 1970. The French Cabinet approved the other day the plan for a joint Anglo-French project for an aluminum supersonic airliner capable of traveling at 1,400 miles per hour. British Cabinet approval is expected shortly.

Before the end of the year President Kennedy will receive recommendations from his air advisers on a similar American project.

There is little hope that the U. S.—with a stainless steel craft will travel at 2,000 mph—would be able to beat the Anglo-French endeavor by 1970. At the earliest, such a plane could not be on the air routes before 1972. Thus the Anglo-French plan would have a two-year advantage.

No one knows exactly how much these supersonic airliners are going to cost. A figure of $8 million each is mentioned for the Anglo-French and $18 million for the American. Both will require heavy government subsidies.

The two-year advantage enjoyed by the Anglo-French project could be of dubious worth. Some national airlines might decide to weather the competition it provides and wait for the American plane which will give them the time-edge.

These new speed dimensions will call for special adjustments from air travelers. Time zones will be telescoped. Even in a space age it will be difficult to realize that America will be in commuting distance of Britain and France.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Significance Of TV

Television grows increasingly important because it is the best medium for entertainment and leisure for the next generation. Of course, the shows are usually put on by oldsters, who sometimes do not understand their successors. The oldsters must be pleased too, for they buy the heavier and more expensive matters advertised. And, from an economic standpoint, TV is essentially an advertising medium, which means that the artists, who write, direct and play in most of the shows, have to struggle against bad taste. They sometimes prevail.

Nevertheless, a knob-turner can usually find what he wants. I, for instance, having reached a fairly advanced age, cannot get too excited about a sexy picture. In fact, most of the kids I know laugh at the imitative antics of elderly actors (in their 30s etc.) acting like the kids no longer do. Each generation has its own approach to sex. The Theda Bara concept of sex is not for this age. James T. Quirk, Publisher of "TV Guide," makes the point:

"Ever since the first cave man began chiseling on walls, violence and sex have been accepted as essential ingredients in story-telling. The question is, and always has been, how much of these ingredients is important or necessary? You think you know, and I think I know, and Newton Minow thinks he knows. And while each of us might uphold a differing viewpoint about a specific situation, we would all agree that blatant, out-of-context sex or violence, programmed for its own sake, is abhorrent."

Much that I see on TV is not as abhorrent as it is boring. So I turn the knob. I, for one, would prefer pay television, because the ads are not for me. They interrupt the continuity of the story. Just when I warm up to want to punch the villain on the nose, up comes a detergent. I never bought a detergent in my life, not being a housewife. I want to see and hear a relaxing story. I turn the knob and somebody is selling destinking medication. I shut the thing off and go back to my books.

Maybe I would not mind the ads if they were interesting. For instance, I will listen to a "Dash" ad, even though it deals with a detergent, because the amazing monotone of the actor is almost musical. Commercials spoil every story for me. To have a deeply tragic scene interrupted by a cheerful, smiling girl, with brilliantly white teeth, selling me a cigarette breaks into a tragic story.

Nevertheless, there is always the knob. On Thanksgiving Day, I listened to the Boston Symphony's last concert of the 1962 season at Tanglewood. For the first time in 13 years, I saw Charles Munch's face when he conducted Beethoven's Ninth. This was worth all the foibles and nonsense on television. It is even possible to forgive the curious editorial comments occasionally heard.

In a word, television is still finding its way to become a mature medium for all levels of populations, for all ages and all developments. It requires increasingly mature minds, particularly in its news departments. Jim Hagerty's boo-boo in the Alger Hiss telecast on Nixon will not soon be repeated by anyone. But boo-boos will be made, as they are made in newspapers and magazines, more mature media.

The great advantage of television is the knob. I have a device to cut out what I don't want to hear, exercising one of the supreme privileges of freedom—the right not to listen. It is a glorious right. Perhaps that is why Beethoven left us such glorious music; he was deaf. His mind could not be corrupted by his ear.

However, Quirk over-does his apologia. He says: "And let there be an end to the persistent critical complaint that episodes involving violence or sex tend to warp the impressionable minds of children. It is a simple matter to determine, in advance, the content of almost everything that appears on your set . . ."

He admonished the parent for not being vigilant. The same argument might be used against parents who permit their children to go to the candy store to buy heroin. The police should have gone there first. That is what we pay the police for. Of course, we do not pay for television. We buy the machines and the stuff comes free, having been paid for by the hucksters. Nevertheless, TV should police itself. I am very grateful for "Perry Mason," "The Defenders" and "Ben Casey," and for the knob. I think "Ben Casey" is doing much for an understanding of the medical profession.

Public Impression Of 'Advertiser' Is Wrong

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The controversy over a television company's selection of Alger Hiss, convicted perjurer, as a proper person to appraise Richard Nixon's political career is by no means ended. The issues in it and their implications are being widely discussed by the public as an example either of an indiscretion by certain advertisers afterwards in canceling their contracts or of the bad judgment of the broadcasting company in putting Hiss on the air in the first place.

Maybe there ought to be an "executive order" issued — or something else devised that would get equal publicity — to enable the radio and television companies to rid themselves of the word "sponsor." For this is at the root of their trouble with those firms which, fearing an adverse public opinion, cancel advertising arrangements with a network that incurs widespread criticism because of a particular program.

Webster's New World Dictionary defines "sponsor" as follows:

"1. A person who enters into an agreement to be responsible for some other person, etc.

"2. A person or agency that gives endorsement to or vouches for some person or thing.

"3. A business firm or other agency that pays the costs of a radio or television program — usually a program that combines entertainment with advertising for the benefit of the firm or agency."

Now, the advertiser isn't responsible at all for the content of a television or radio program. He merely agrees to pay for the privilege of having his "commercials" presented to an audience that is presumably to be attracted by the program.

But the American people for the most part think of the word "sponsor" in its dictionary meaning — that the company which pays for the time on the air has had something to do with the preparation of the program and somehow endorses everything in it. This impression is widespread. Printed publications, perhaps to a lesser extent, occasionally encounter the same fallacious theory about advertising control of news content.

For there are some readers who really believe advertisers bribe writers and editors or attempt to use economic pressure to influence what's printed. There are, for instance, readers who write letters to the newspapers and endeavor to hold the editor responsible even for quotations printed in interviews or in dispatches that appear in the news. Many a letter threatens to cancel a subscription unless the reporter or writer be fired.

President Kennedy himself engaged in a form of reprisal when he recently discontinued 22 subscriptions to the New York "Herald Tribune" which were for the use of the White House staff. Allegedly, the President didn't like the way the paper had handled some news articles on the Billie Sol Estes case and the stockpile conference, the President agreed with the comment of Newton H. Minow, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, who was deploring cancellation of advertising contracts with the broadcasting companies because of program content. Mr. Minow defended the right of the American Broadcasting Company to present Alger Hiss on its Nixon program and emphasized that networks and stations should be free from outside pressure groups, and also from "those few, fearful advertisers who seek to influence the professional judgment of broadcasting newsmen."

Mr. Kennedy said he was in sympathy with the view expressed by Mr. Minow and by the network's Vice President, James C. Hagerty. Unfortunately, there was investigations.

Yet last Tuesday at his press no chairman of any federal commission to say the same thing in behalf of the press at the time publicity was given to the action of a President of the United States in canceling 22 subscriptions to a newspaper with which he disagreed.

Mr. Kennedy has, of course, a right to read what he pleases and to subscribe to any publication he chooses. President Eisenhower didn't read certain newspapers but never publicized that fact or prohibited his staff from subscribing to them for the White House.

Advertisers, too, can be choosey. As "sponsors" they don't like to become identified with programs that may antagonize the public and thus drive away customers. Some advertisers steer clear of controversial programs altogether for the same reason. They may never tell the broadcasting companies what kind of programs to put on the air, but they also may never tell anybody the thoughts that cross their minds when they turn down a chance to "sponsor" a particular program. The same thing undoubtedly happens when, for similar reasons, a company rejects some printed publication as a medium for advertising messages.

Certainly the American Broadcasting Company had a right to present Alger Hiss or anybody else — whether or not he had served a term in Alcatraz or Sing Sing or any other prison. This might be considered poor taste by many persons watching the program, but there is no question about the right of a broadcaster or of a publication to make a mistake in judgment.

Since time immemorial, readers have written to publications in criticism — often canceling subscriptions — if the editorial policy or the reporting of the news wasn't slanted to their point of view. The late Henry L. Mencken, famous satirist, used to reply in an interesting way to persons who criticized his writings. He often did it with a retort courteous of only four words: "You may be right!"

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

NIXON'S PRESS BLAST — One of the most fascinating things about politics is that it always seems to provide something new and entertaining. It was Richard M. Nixon's turn this time around.

For the political pro he's reputed to be, Nixon stood the country—particularly the country's press—on its collective ear when he denounced biased newspaper coverage of his campaign for the California governorship. It was the most startling statement made by a politician in the wake of a defeat at the polls in modern times.

Nixon's 16 years in national politics had typed him as a cold, ruthless man who operated more like an automaton than a human being with human emotions. His denunciation of the press, at least in part obviously uncontrolled, was so far out of character as to be unbelievable.

The initial reaction among the Washington press corps was that even if the California defeat had not done it, Nixon had read himself out of American political life. One television network went so far as to present a half-hour political "obituary" of the former Vice President.

However, politicians have a way of enduring on the American scene and events have a way of resurrecting seemingly dead political personalities. Certainly, the remembrance of Nixon will play a part at the 1964 Republican Convention. And, it would be surprising indeed if Nixon should make no appearances during the Presidential campaigning two years hence.

As the shock of Nixon's outburst wears off, it may in fact prove to be an asset in part. As one detractor commented grudgingly, it was the first human, uncalculated reaction Nixon has shown in his whole political career. His deep disappointment and bitter comment was understandable, if only because it obviously had no ulterior motive and was so devastatingly self-defeating.

U. S. Satellite Corporation Making History, But Behind Closed Doors

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The communications satellite corporation is making history with its fast formulating plans for bouncing radio, TV and phone messages by satellite around the world. But two of its sessions have been held in such secrecy that even the stenotypist has been sent out of the room.

This column, however, can report some of the things that happened.

At the first meeting, it was Sidney Weinberg, head of the giant Goldman-Sachs investment firm, who spied the stenotypist and asked that he be dismissed.

"This is ont a corporation yet," he said, "and I want to be in the position of talking freely without having everything I say recorded."

There was no immediate objection, so Chairman Philip Graham, publisher of the Washington Post and Newsweek, graciously acquiesced.

"I guess you find yourself among the ranks of the unemployed-with-pay," he told the stenotypist as the latter left the room.

As he did so, George Killion, president of the American President steamship line, demurred.

"This is a public trust," he said. "We have to report to Congress and what we say should be on the record."

So as secretary who had remained in the room took brief notes, but could not transcribe the entire record of the meeting. As a result, a masterful outline of the corporation's aims and functions given by Chairman Graham could not be properly recorded.

Clash Of The Moguls

During the closed-door discussion which followed, several differences developed between Weinberg, a stanch Republican, who in the 1952 campaign raised $3,000,000 for radio and TV spots for Eisenhower; and Killion, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, who raised considerable money for Truman and Stevenson.

Weinberg wanted to proceed with incorporation right away.

"We've got to get down to elementary bookkeeping," he said. "We need by-laws, a charter, and we need personnel."

But Killion cautioned that the directors should first ascertain who would want to do with this revolutionary man-made star. He proposed that AT&T, RCA, Western Union, and the other companies using telephone and telegraph lines to various parts of the world be invited to testify as to how much they would use the satellite.

This was agreed.

It developed that there is a growth in communications of 20 per cent a year, and that by 1965 our present telephone and radio communications facilities will be exhausted. AT&T, for instance, has $198,000,000 invested in submarine cables, with the British General Post Office owning a similar amount in partnership with AT&T. Within a very short time, AT&T will have to decide whether to spend several million more to expand these cables — or whether to rely on the new satellite.

As the meeting closed, Sidney Weinberg, always wary of press relations, wanted to pass upon the press release to be issued by the satellite directors.

Again, Killion objected.

"We have the best expert on press releases in the country right here," said Killion—"our chairman. I suggest we leave this to him."

"I guess we're going to have a few arguments," said Weinberg.

"Yes," said Killion, "but we can still be friends."

When the executive committee to operate the satellite under a Democratic administration was selected, however, Weinberg, the man who raised $3,000,000 to elect Eisenhower, got a favored place on the committee, while Killion, who had raised money for Truman and Stevenson, ended up in the cold.

Panic In Painting

By John Crosby

PARIS

The market for art in Paris has gone plumb to hell. In fact, the situation for young artists is so horrible that a bunch of them are holding an exhibition called "Catastrophe," which is pronounced in French the way Jimmy Durante pronounces it in English and means the same thing.

A young artist friend of mine named Lynn Emery from New Orleans who does adorable abstract fountains (she's going to hate me for calling them adorable—that's not the mot juste for abstract sculpture—but that's the way they strike me) told me she had visited about 40 Parisian dealers and the story is the same everywhere: "Nobody is selling anything."

This isn't altogether true. If you're a dead artist or if your name is Picasso or Chagall, you're all right. Otherwise, you're pretty sure to be in trouble. Not everybody is depressed by this bad news. In fact, the odd thing here is that a great many people are throwing their hats in the air, cheering wildly. Larjou, who occupies an apartment at the absolute peak of Montmartre, and is sometimes known as its king, and who paints figures, not abstractions, wrote a manifesto on the back of the poster of his latest exhibition exulting that abstraction is finished: "The paintings people paid millions for are offered on the world art market and can't find takers at even a hundredth of their original price."

George Bernier, who is director of l'Oeil Gallery, told me: "I'm sure it's a healthy adjustment, provided it doesn't go on too long and provided it doesn't hurt the painters too much. I don't think the wives of artists ought to be wearing Dior dresses. On the other hand, I don't think artists ought to be penniless again the way they were."

But some people got a bit further than that. Raymond Cordier, who directs the gallery showing Catastrophe — 27 rue Guenegaud — says flatly: "Bad business is good for painters because it brings them back to true values. Twenty or 30 years ago a painter was living among the poor people and he was anti-bourgeois and he didn't want to be integrated with the bourgeois because it made him anti-artistic. Twenty-five years ago a painter was anti-conformist.

"Now the artist paints only to make money. He wants to buy a new car, to marry the banker's daughter, to get his picture in the papers. His aim is to be integrated with the bourgeois, to go everywhere and do everything because he has money. But if business is bad, all those painters who get into the business just to get rich will drop out. All those who took up painting not because they liked painting but simply to make money will start selling furniture polish, which is what they ought to be doing."

It's an interesting thought. Hungry artists have turned out some marvelous paintings, but then so have well-fed ones. Actually, starvation provides much better material for the biographers than for the artists and even better for the novelists.

I doubt that Picasso is going to inspire anything as good as "Moon and Sixpence" because life has been so extraordinarily kind to him.

So much money has been made here in Paris by both artists and dealers in the last ten years that austerity is still pretty relative. It'll be a long time before we get a genuine starving artist. The wives may have to desert Dior, but they'll still have dresses on their backs. What's more they'll still be wives, not mistresses, and that's a pretty bourgeois, conformist thing right there. If you ask me, that's what started this orgy of abstraction in the first place. When the artists started marrying the girls instead of just living with them, that's when the artist began to lose interest in painting people, and began painting globs.

You can hardly expect him to look over the breakfast table at that same old wife as she's making toast and say: "My God, what a lovely face!" Or: "What a lovely body!" Instead of looking at his wife, he looks at the toast and says: "What an extraordinary texture! Look at those sworls, that configuration!" Right there you have the birth of a glob.

But if the girl wasn't his wife, but was someone he met the night before at a coffee house (because he not only can't afford a wife, he can't afford a meal), then he wouldn't be looking at the toast. Chances are there wouldn't be any toast. He'd be looking at the girl thinking: "What extraordinary eyes! Where's my paintbrush?"

A little starvation might do wonders towards restoring human values to painting.

Dandruff Can Be Controlled But Not Cured

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Reading about a new dandruff remedy reminded me that it is normal for dead skin cells to scale off the scalp at a rate that is hardly noticeable. We call it dandruff when flaking occurs at an abnormally rapid rate. The scales may be hard, dry, and grayish in color, or greasy and yellowish, depending upon whether the scalp is dry or oily.

The cause of dandruff is not known, although any agent that damages the scalp may produce scaling. This occurs when irritants such as certain hair dyes, rinses, and sprays are used excessively.

But many people have dandruff who never put anything on the scalp except water and a bland shampoo. These individuals usually have a low metabolism or an inherent malfunction of the oil glands. In others, scaling follows a severe illness or is associated with other skin conditions such as psoriasis or seborrheic dermatitis.

There is no cure for dandruff although light cases can be controled by shampooing with a mild soap product. This is done daily when the scalp is oily and less frequently when it is dry. The objectionable white scales on the clothing will be eliminated by this measure, but the basic disorder will not.

A selium sulfide shampoo has been used during the last decade to control flaking in a high percentage of those with seborrheic dermatitis and common dandruff. The manufacturers of this product have a new medicated formula (Ioquin) that is said to control the scaling in more than 95 per cent of 700 patients with different forms of dandruff.

The hair is washed with a good soap or detergent and rinsed. Ioquin is then applied as though it were a shampoo. The medication is allowed to remain on the scalp for 5 minutes and is rinsed two or three times. Complete removal of the product is necessary, especially if the hair is to be tinted, dyed, or given a permanent. The suspension is recommended twice weekly for two weeks and then once weekly.

TOMORROW: Nasal bleeding.

PLEURAL PAIN

A. D. B. writes: What part of the body is affected in pleurodynia?

REPLY

The lower chest along the diaphragm. This unusual viral disease is contagious; pain is present for a day or two, then disappears, only to return 48 or 72 hours later

NO APPETITE WHEN ILL

Mrs. W. writes: Does hepatitis affect the appetite?

REPLY

Yes. Fever, weakness, and yellow discoloration of the skin often accompany loss of appetite.

BLOODSHOT EYES

H. W. A. writes: Is there a pill that can be taken to clear up bloodshot eyes?

REPLY

No — not for the ordinary type of congestion. On the other hand, if the condition is the result of glaucoma, a diuretic tablet may prove helpful. An infection may require tablets containing an antibiotic, a sulfonamide, or an adrenal hormone.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Reservists have revived the World War pleasantry about the sergeant who barked, "When I say 'fire' I want all of you to fire at Will" — whereupon one recruit jumped up and ran like blazes. "Who was that man?" demanded the sergeant. The answer: "That was Will."

"English in the vernacular," writes Penny Droke, "can be a pretty painful thing sometimes. Once the great American public gets hold of a good phrase, it often worries it to death. Like this: 'Time-wise, you do better on the turnpike, but traffic-wise, the old road is better.' Or 'food-wise, it's the best place in town, but it's not much atmosphere-wise.' Or that other current favorite: 'He's an actor's actor,' or 'a writer's writer,' or whatever. We recently heard a Skid Row hotel referred to as a 'flop-house's flophouse'."

An extravagant king of Saxony once borrowed every cent that his court jester had put away for a rainy day. "Now," sighed the jester, "I understand the meaning of that old adage: a fool and his money are soon parted!"

Air Competition Of The Future

The six hours and 10 minutes scheduled flying time from Montreal to London by jet may be cut by more than half in 1970. The French Cabinet approved the other day the plan for a joint Anglo-French project for an aluminum supersonic airliner capable of traveling at 1,400 miles per hour. British Cabinet approval is expected shortly.

Before the end of the year President Kennedy will receive recommendations from his air advisers on a similar American project.

There is little hope that the U. S.—with a stainless steel craft will travel at 2,000 mph—would be able to beat the Anglo-French endeavor by 1970. At the earliest, such a plane could not be on the air routes before 1972. Thus the Anglo-French plan would have a two-year advantage.

No one knows exactly how much these supersonic airliners are going to cost. A figure of $8 million each is mentioned for the Anglo-French and $18 million for the American. Both will require heavy government subsidies.

The two-year advantage enjoyed by the Anglo-French project could be of dubious worth. Some national airlines might decide to weather the competition it provides and wait for the American plane which will give them the time-edge.

These new speed dimensions will call for special adjustments from air travelers. Time zones will be telescoped. Even in a space age it will be difficult to realize that America will be in commuting distance of Britain and France.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Significance Of TV

Television grows increasingly important because it is the best medium for entertainment and leisure for the next generation. Of course, the shows are usually put on by oldsters, who sometimes do not understand their successors. The oldsters must be pleased too, for they buy the heavier and more expensive matters advertised. And, from an economic standpoint, TV is essentially an advertising medium, which means that the artists, who write, direct and play in most of the shows, have to struggle against bad taste. They sometimes prevail.

Nevertheless, a knob-turner can usually find what he wants. I, for instance, having reached a fairly advanced age, cannot get too excited about a sexy picture. In fact, most of the kids I know laugh at the imitative antics of elderly actors (in their 30s etc.) acting like the kids no longer do. Each generation has its own approach to sex. The Theda Bara concept of sex is not for this age. James T. Quirk, Publisher of "TV Guide," makes the point:

"Ever since the first cave man began chiseling on walls, violence and sex have been accepted as essential ingredients in story-telling. The question is, and always has been, how much of these ingredients is important or necessary? You think you know, and I think I know, and Newton Minow thinks he knows. And while each of us might uphold a differing viewpoint about a specific situation, we would all agree that blatant, out-of-context sex or violence, programmed for its own sake, is abhorrent."

Much that I see on TV is not as abhorrent as it is boring. So I turn the knob. I, for one, would prefer pay television, because the ads are not for me. They interrupt the continuity of the story. Just when I warm up to want to punch the villain on the nose, up comes a detergent. I never bought a detergent in my life, not being a housewife. I want to see and hear a relaxing story. I turn the knob and somebody is selling destinking medication. I shut the thing off and go back to my books.

Maybe I would not mind the ads if they were interesting. For instance, I will listen to a "Dash" ad, even though it deals with a detergent, because the amazing monotone of the actor is almost musical. Commercials spoil every story for me. To have a deeply tragic scene interrupted by a cheerful, smiling girl, with brilliantly white teeth, selling me a cigarette breaks into a tragic story.

Nevertheless, there is always the knob. On Thanksgiving Day, I listened to the Boston Symphony's last concert of the 1962 season at Tanglewood. For the first time in 13 years, I saw Charles Munch's face when he conducted Beethoven's Ninth. This was worth all the foibles and nonsense on television. It is even possible to forgive the curious editorial comments occasionally heard.

In a word, television is still finding its way to become a mature medium for all levels of populations, for all ages and all developments. It requires increasingly mature minds, particularly in its news departments. Jim Hagerty's boo-boo in the Alger Hiss telecast on Nixon will not soon be repeated by anyone. But boo-boos will be made, as they are made in newspapers and magazines, more mature media.

The great advantage of television is the knob. I have a device to cut out what I don't want to hear, exercising one of the supreme privileges of freedom—the right not to listen. It is a glorious right. Perhaps that is why Beethoven left us such glorious music: he was deaf. His mind could not be corrupted by his ear.

However, Quirk over-does his apologia. He says: "And let there be an end to the persistent critical complaint that episodes involving violence or sex tend to warp the impressionable minds of children. It is a simple matter to determine, in advance, the content of almost everything that appears on your set . . ."

He admonished the parent for not being vigilant. The same argument might be used against parents who permit their children to go to the candy store to buy heroin. The police should have gone there first. That is what we pay the police for. Of course, we do not pay for television. We buy the machines and the stuff comes free, having been paid for by the hucksters. Nevertheless, TV should police itself. I am very grateful for "Perry Mason," "The Defenders" and "Ben Casey," and for the knob. I think "Ben Casey" is doing much for an understanding of the medical profession.

Public Impression Of 'Advertiser' Is Wrong

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The controversy over a television company's selection of Alger Hiss, convicted perjurer, as a proper person to appraise Richard Nixon's political career is by no means ended. The issues in it and their implications are being widely discussed by the public as an example either of an indiscretion by certain advertisers afterwards in canceling their contracts or of the bad judgment of the broadcasting company in putting Hiss on the air in the first place.

Maybe there ought to be an "executive order" issued — or something else devised that would get equal publicity — to enable the radio and television companies to rid themselves of the word "sponsor." For this is at the root of their trouble with those firms which, fearing an adverse public opinion, cancel advertising arrangements with a network that incurs widespread criticism because of a particular program.

Webster's New World Dictionary defines "sponsor" as follows:

"1. A person who enters into an agreement to be responsible for some other person, etc.

"2. A person or agency that gives endorsement to or vouches for some person or thing.

"3. A business firm or other agency that pays the costs of a radio or television program — usually a program that combines entertainment with advertising for the benefit of the firm or agency."

Now, the advertiser isn't responsible at all for the content of a television or radio program. He merely agrees to pay for the privilege of having his "commercials" presented to an audience that is presumably to be attracted by the program.

But the American people for the most part think of the word "sponsor" in its dictionary meaning — that the company which pays for the time on the air has had something to do with the preparation of the program and somehow endorses everything in it. This impression is widespread. Printed publications, perhaps to a lesser extent, occasionally encounter the same fallacious theory about advertising control of news content.

For there are some readers who really believe advertisers bribe writers and editors or attempt to use economic pressure to influence what's printed. There are, for instance, readers who write letters to the newspapers and endeavor to hold the editor responsible even for quotations printed in interviews or in dispatches that appear in the news. Many a letter threatens to cancel a subscription unless the reporter or writer be fired.

President Kennedy himself engaged in a form of reprisal when he recently discontinued 22 subscriptions to the New York "Herald Tribune" which were for the use of the White House staff. Allegedly, the President didn't like the way the paper had handled some news articles on the Billie Sol Estes case and the stockpile conference, the President agreed with the comment of Newton H. Minow, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, who was deploring cancellation of advertising contracts with the broadcasting companies because of program content. Mr. Minow defended the right of the American Broadcasting Company to present Alger Hiss on its Nixon program and emphasized that networks and stations should be free from outside pressure groups, and also from "those few, fearful advertisers who seek to influence the professional judgment of broadcasting newsmen."

Mr. Kennedy said he was in sympathy with the view expressed by Mr. Minow and by the network's Vice President, James C. Hagerty. Unfortunately, there was investigations.

Yet last Tuesday at his press no chairman of any federal commission to say the same thing in behalf of the press at the time publicity was given to the action of a President of the United States in canceling 22 subscriptions to a newspaper with which he disagreed.

Mr. Kennedy has, of course, a right to read what he pleases and to subscribe to any publication he chooses. President Eisenhower didn't read certain newspapers but never publicized that fact or prohibited his staff from subscribing to them for the White House.

Advertisers, too, can be choosey. As "sponsors" they don't like to become identified with programs that may antagonize the public and thus drive away customers. Some advertisers steer clear of controversial programs altogether for the same reason. They may never tell the broadcasting companies what kind of programs to put on the air, but they also may never tell anybody the thoughts that cross their minds when they turn down a chance to "sponsor" a particular program. The same thing undoubtedly happens when, for similar reasons, a company rejects some printed publication as a medium for advertising messages.

Certainly the American Broadcasting Company had a right to present Alger Hiss or anybody else — whether or not he had served a term in Alcatraz or Sing Sing or any other prison. This might be considered poor taste by many persons watching the program, but there is no question about the right of a broadcaster or of a publication to make a mistake in judgment.

Since time immemorial, readers have written to publications in criticism — often canceling subscriptions — if the editorial policy or the reporting of the news wasn't slanted to their point of view. The late Henry L. Mencken, famous satirist, used to reply in an interesting way to persons who criticized his writings. He often did it with a retort courteous of only four words: "You may be right!"

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

NIXON'S PRESS BLAST — One of the most fascinating things about politics is that it always seems to provide something new and entertaining. It was Richard M. Nixon's turn this time around.

For the political pro he's reputed to be, Nixon stood the country —particularly the country's press —on its collective ear when he denounced biased newspaper coverage of his campaign for the California governorship. It was the most startling statement made by a politician in the wake of a defeat at the polls in modern times.

Nixon's 16 years in national politics had typed him as a cold, ruthless man who operated more like an automaton than a human being with human emotions. His denunciation of the press, at least in part obviously uncontrolled, was so far out of character as to be unbelievable.

The initial reaction among the Washington press corps was that even if the California defeat had not done it, Nixon had read himself out of American political life. One television network went so far as to present a half-hour political "obituary" of the former Vice President.

However, politicians have a way of enduring on the American scene and events have a way of resurrecting seemingly dead political personalities. Certainly, the remembrance of Nixon will play a part at the 1964 Republican Convention. And, it would be surprising indeed if Nixon should make no appearances during the Presidential campaigning two years hence.

As the shock of Nixon's outburst wears off, it may in fact prove to be an asset in part. As one detractor commented grudgingly, it was the first human, uncalculated reaction Nixon has shown in his whole political career. His deep disappointment and bitter comment was understandable, if only because it obviously had no ulterior motive and was so devastatingly self-defeating.

I don't think the wives of artists ought to be wearing Dior dresses. On the other hand, I don't think artists ought to be penniless again the way they were."

But some people got a bit further than that. Raymond Cordier, who directs the gallery showing Catastrophe — 27 rue Guenegaud — says flatly: "Bad business is good for painters because it brings them back to true values. Twenty or 30 years ago a painter was living among the poor people and he was anti-bourgeois and he didn't want to be integrated with the bourgeois because it made him anti-artistic. Twenty-five years ago a painter was anti-conformist.

"Now the artist paints only to make money. He wants to buy a new car, to marry the banker's daughter, to get his picture in the papers. His aim is to be integrated with the bourgeois, to go everywhere and do everything because he has money. But if business is bad, all those painters who get into the business just to get rich will drop out. All those who took up painting not because they liked painting but simply to make money will start selling furniture polish, which is what they ought to be doing."

It's an interesting thought. Hungry artists have turned out some marvelous paintings, but then so have well-fed ones. Actually, starvation provides much better material for the biographers than for the artists and even better for the novelists.

I doubt that Picasso is going to inspire anything as good as "Moon and Sixpence" because life has been so extraordinarily kind to him.

So much money has been made here in Paris by both artists and dealers in the last ten years that austerity is still pretty relative. It'll be a long time before we get a genuine starving artist. The wives may have to desert Dior, but they'll still have dresses on their backs. What's more they'll still be wives, not mistresses, and that's a pretty bourgeois, conformist thing right there. If you ask me, that's what started this orgy of abstraction in the first place. When the artists started marrying the girls instead of just living with them, that's when the artist began to lose interest in painting people, and began painting globs.

You can hardly expect him to look over the breakfast table at that same old wife as she's making toast and say: "My God, what a lovely face!" Or: "What a lovely body!" Instead of looking at his wife, he looks at the toast and says: "What an extraordinary texture! Look at those sworls, that configuration!" Right there you have the birth of a glob.

But if the girl wasn't his wife, but was someone he met the night before at a coffee house (because he not only can't afford a wife, he can't afford a meal), then he wouldn't be looking at the toast. Chances are there wouldn't be any toast. He'd be looking at the girl thinking: "What extraordinary eyes! Where's my paintbrush?"

A little starvation might do wonders towards restoring human values to painting.

Dandruff Can Be Controlled But Not Cured

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Reading about a new dandruff remedy reminded me that it is normal for dead skin cells to scale off the scalp at a rate that is hardly noticeable. We call it dandruff when flaking occurs at an abnormally rapid rate. The scales may be hard, dry, and grayish in color, or greasy and yellowish, depending upon whether the scalp is dry or oily.

The cause of dandruff is not known, although any agent that damages the scalp may produce scaling. This occurs when irritants such as certain hair dyes, rinses, and sprays are used excessively.

But many people have dandruff who never put anything on the scalp except water and a bland shampoo. These individuals usually have a low metabolism or an inherent malfunction of the oil glands. In others, scaling follows a severe illness or is associated with other skin conditions such as psoriasis or seborrheic dermatitis.

There is no cure for dandruff although light cases can be controled by shampooing with a mild soap product. This is done daily when the scalp is oily and less frequently when it is dry. The objectionable white scales on the clothing will be eliminated by this measure, but the basic disorder will not.

A selium sulfide shampoo has been used during the last decade to control flaking in a high percentage of those with seborrheic dermatitis and common dandruff. The manufacturers of this product have a new medicated formula (Ioquin) that is said to control the scaling in more than 95 per cent of 700 patients with different forms of dandruff.

The hair is washed with a good soap or detergent and rinsed. Ioquin is then applied as though it were a shampoo. The medication is allowed to remain on the scalp for 5 minutes and is rinsed two or three times. Complete removal of the product is necessary, especially if the hair is to be tinted, dyed, or given a permanent. The suspension is recommended twice weekly for two weeks and then once weekly.

TOMORROW: Nasal bleeding.

PLEURAL PAIN

A. D. B. writes: What part of the body is affected in pleurodynia?

REPLY

The lower chest along the diaphragm. This unusual viral disease is contagious; pain is present for a day or two, then disappears, only to return 48 or 72 hours later

NO APPETITE WHEN ILL

Mrs. W. writes: Does hepatitis affect the appetite?

REPLY

Yes. Fever, weakness, and yellow discoloration of the skin often accompany loss of appetite.

BLOODSHOT EYES

H. W. A. writes: Is there a pill that can be taken to clear up bloodshot eyes?

REPLY

No — not for the ordinary type of congestion. On the other hand, if the condition is the result of glaucoma, a diuretic tablet may prove helpful. An infection may require tablets containing an antibiotic, a sulfonamide, or an adrenal hormone.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Reservists have revived the World War pleasantry about the sergeant who barked, "When I say 'fire' I want all of you to fire at Will" — whereupon one recruit jumped up and ran like blazes. "Who was that man?" demanded the sergeant. The answer: "That was Will."

"English in the vernacular," writes Penny Droke, "can be a pretty painful thing sometimes. Once the great American public gets hold of a good phrase, it often worries it to death. Like this: 'Time-wise, you do better on the turnpike, but traffic-wise, the old road is better.' Or 'food-wise, it's the best place in town, but it's not much atmosphere-wise.' Or that other current favorite: 'He's an actor's actor,' or 'a writer's writer,' or whatever. We recently heard a Skid Row hotel referred to as a 'flop-house's flophouse'."

An extravagant king of Saxony once borrowed every cent that his court jester had put away for a rainy day. "Now," sighed the jester, "I understand the meaning of that old adage: a fool and his money are soon parted!"

Yankees Trade Bill Skowron To Los Angeles For Stan Williams

Dodgers Swap Twirler For First Sacker

Major Clubs Draft 56 For $695,000; Birds Lose Seven

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees Monday traded veteran first baseman Bill Skowron to the Los Angeles Dodgers for right-handed pitcher Stan Williams.

The deal, the first by the Yankees in the inter-league trading session, brought to New York a pitcher who is expected to become the fourth regular starter Manager Ralph Houk needed so desperately in the drive to the American League pennant and the World Series victory over San Francisco.

Williams, 26, had a 14-12 record with Los Angeles last season, his fifth with the Dodgers.

Skowron, called "Moose" by his Yankee teammates, has been a Yankee regular for eight years, playing on seven championship teams. He had a .270 batting average with 23 home runs last season.

Senators Trade Bright

In another trade, the Washington Senators sent 33-year-old first baseman Harry Bright to the Cincinnati Reds for rookie first baseman Rogelio Alvarez.

Bright, who started as a catcher with the Senators, took over first base when Dale Long was dealt to the Yanks. He hit .273 in 113 games last season with 17 homers and 67 runs batted in.

Alvarez, 24, played most of last year with San Diego of the Pacific Coast League where he hit .318 with 18 homers and 75 RBIs. He was the first baseman on the PCL all-star team. The Reds brought him up at the end of the season and he hit .214 in 14 games. Both Bright and Alvarez are right handed hitters.

The announcement of the trade, the third in the inter-league session, came after a day-long draft by the majors of minor league players. In all, the majors drafted a record 56 players from their rivals farm clubs for a $695,000, making heavy raids on the ranks of bonus babies at bargain prices.

Everybody except the Boston Red Sox got into the act with the New York Mets and the Washington Senators each taking six players. Most of the names meant little to the average fan, for 45 of the 56 were fuzzy-cheeked kids in their first full year of pro baseball.

Yanks Pick Kunkel

The talent-rich New York Yankees, who normally pass up the draft jackpot, dipped into the pool for the first time since they picked Gene Mauch, now manager of the Phillies, in 1951. General Manager Roy Hamey selected Bill Kunkel, a 26-year-old right-handed pitcher who was a relief man with Kansas City in 1961 and 1962 but finished the season at Toronto.

George Weiss, former head man of the Yankees and now president of the weak New York Mets, had first pick by virtue of the Mets' sorry last place finish in their first season. Weiss surprised many by taking second baseman Ted Schreiber from the Boston Red Sox' farm at Seattle, where he hit .277 but showed little power.

The draft for the first time was divided into three categories. The experienced players cost $25,000 each, and 11 were taken.

First year men signed before last December were next. Fifteen were taken at $12,000 each. Then came the men signed since last December, when a new rule was adopted to discourage payment of huge bonuses to untried schoolboys. The majors selected 30 from this category at $8,000 each.

All but seven of the major league teams took advantage of the special rule that allowed them to go one over their normal player limit and sign a 41st player from the $8,000 first year category.

Minors Select 60

The minor leagues drafted 60 players for $483,000, making an over-all total of 116 players for $1,178,000.

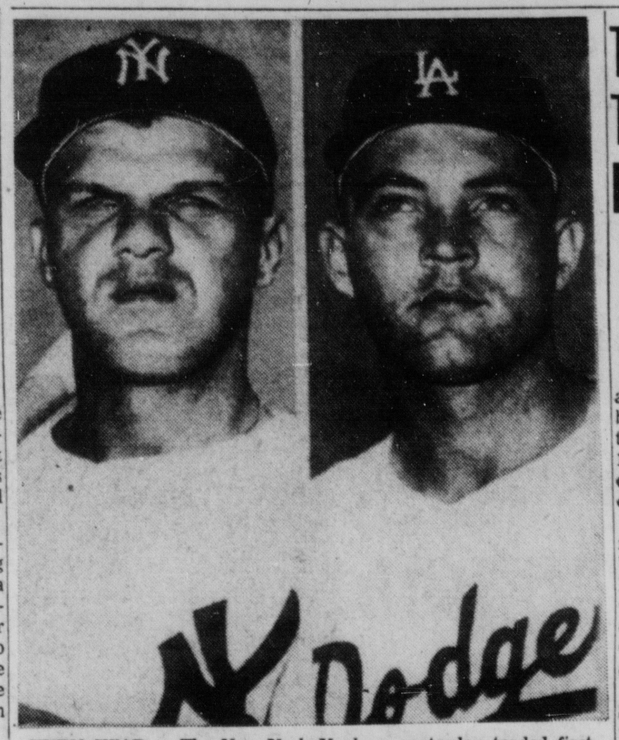

Of the 60 players drafted by the minor leagues, triple A leagues drafted 34 for $340,000; double A for $27,000; A leagues, 14, for $92,000; B leagues, 9 for $24,000, and C leagues, none.

The Mets drafted six for $90,000. Washington also took six for $73,000. Houston, Minnesota and Cleveland each picked five. The Senators and Colts went heavy in the $8,000 department, taking three each.

Orioles Hit Hard

Baltimore's stockpile really took a clobbering. The Orioles lost seven men from their Rochester farm in the International League. Of course, most of them never saw Rochester but performed in lower class leagues and were brought up after the season.

Cincinnati also was hard hit, losing six from its San Diego roster. Bill DeWitt, president of the Reds, picked up four men for $70,000, including 33-year-old Al Worthington, former major leaguer who had a 15-4 record at Indianapolis. The Reds may have picked up a real find a right-handed pitcher Barry Shollenberger, who won 16 and lost five at Waterloo, Iowa, and struck out 226 in 185 innings.

EVEN SWAP — The New York Yankees yesterday traded first baseman Bill "Moose" Skowron, left, for righthanded pitcher Stan Williams, of the Los Angeles Dodgers. It was a straight player trade in which the Yankees got an established starting pitcher for the veteran first sacker. Williams, a native of Enfield, N. H., had a 14-12 record last season, his fifth with the Dodgers. Skowron has been a Yankee regular for eight years, played on seven championship teams and last season batted .270 and hit 23 home runs. The Boston Red Sox did not draft.

The Yanks' Richmond farm was hit for four.

"Which way is the first aid room?" asked Harry Dalton, the Orioles' farm director as he emerged from the draft meetings. Four of the seven lost were young pitchers who figured highly in the club's future plans.

Cincinnati also was hard hit, losing six from its San Diego roster. Bill DeWitt, president of the Reds, picked up four men for $70,000, including 33-year-old Al Worthington, former major leaguer who had a 15-4 record at Indianapolis. The Reds may have picked up a real find a right-handed pitcher Barry Shollenberger, who won 16 and lost five at Waterloo, Iowa, and struck out 226 in 185 innings.

Twins Get Keller

The Yanks' Richmond farm was hit for four. Best known was Charley Keller Jr., son of King Kong Keller, who was drafted by the Minnesota Twins after hitting .289 at Amarillo. Keller has been troubled by a bad back throughout his promising career.

Ellis Burton, former St. Louis outfielder, was selected by Houston from Toronto and Bob Sadowski, handyman infielder with the Chicago White Sox recently farmed to Indianapolis, was grabbed by the Los Angeles Angels.

The trade mill was grinding out rumors as big league general managers and managers held a series of meetings. Some never will be culminated. Others may be pulled off before the weekend and during the major league meeting in New York Friday and Saturday after the minor leagues end their convention Thursday.

Trojans Cling To No. 1 Spot In Grid Poll

Wisconsin Climbs Into Second Place

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California's unbeaten and untied Trojans, seeking to bring the West Coast its first national football championship since 1939, clung to the No. 1 spot Monday in the major college rankings of The Associated Press.

The hot Trojans, 14-3 come-from-behind victors Saturday over UCLA, beat out their Jan. 1 Rose Bowl foe, Wisconsin's Badgers, who climbed from third to second. Wisconsin won the Big Ten Conference championship Saturday by nipping Minnesota 14-9.

Thirty-seven points separated Southern Cal and Wisconsin in the weekly voting. Based on 10 points for a first place ballot, nine for second and on down, the Trojans stacked up 397 points to 360 for the Badgers.

The Trojans picked up 19 of the 43 first place votes. Third-ranked Mississippi got 12, Wisconsin 9 and ninth-ranked Penn State 3.

Mississippi, idle last week, tumbled from second to third after a tight ballot battle with the Badgers. The undefeated Rebels collected 350 points.

Then came Texas with 299, Alabama 230, Arkansas 187, Louisiana State 155, Oklahoma 132, Penn State 129 and Minnesota 64.

Gophers Take Tumble

Minnesota got the hardest fall of the week. The Gophers fell all the way from fifth to 10th. Oklahoma's Sooners, who won the Big Eight crown and an Orange Bowl bid with a 34-6 triumph over Nebraska, soared two notches, rising from 10th to eighth.

Alabama, Arkansas and Louisiana State all moved up one rung on the national ladder. The Crimson Tide, idle last Saturday, moved from sixth to fifth. Arkansas, an easy 34-0 victor over Texas Tech, jumped from seventh to sixth. LSU stopped Tulane 38-3 and moved from eighth to seventh.

Texas and Penn State remained right where they were a week ago despite victories. The Longhorns, who stung Texas A&M 13-3, were fourth, and the Nittany Lions, who conquered Pitt 16-0, remained ninth.

Play Irish Saturday

Whether Southern California wins the national championship undoubtedly will depend on what happens in the Trojans' game at Los Angeles Saturday with vastly-improved Notre Dame. The national championship will be determined by next weekend's poll.

Only three other clubs among the top ten have unfinished business. Mississippi faces Mississippi State at Oxford, Alabama tests Auburn at Birmingham and Oklahoma goes to Oklahoma State.

Nittany Lions Of Penn State Retain Trophy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Penn State Monday was named the Lambert Trophy winner, emblematic of the major college football championship of the East, for the second straight year.

The Nittany Lions, who compiled a 9-1 record, losing only to Army, were unanimous choice of the eight coaches, sports writers and broadcasters who comprise the board. It marks the third time in the 27-year history of the Lambert Trophy that Penn State has won the award. The Lions also won in 1947.

Unbeaten and untied Dartmouth, the Ivy League champion, was a unanimous choice for second place. The Indians won nine straight games for their first perfect season since 1925.

Army was named to third place with a 7.4 rating from the board rounding out the top 10 were Navy (6.4), Pittsburgh (6.0), Syracuse (5.0), Boston College (4.0), Holy Cross (3.6), Villanova (2.5) and Harvard (1.4).

Curtice Reported Through As Grid Coach At Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Cactus Jack Curtice, the joking country boy football coach, is through after five years at Stanford, The Associated Press learned Monday from an unimpeachable source.

University officials declined to issue an immediate confirmation, but athletic director Al Masters said an announcement might come later.

It was believed no one had been chosen to succeed the 1961 president of the Football Coaches Association of America.

Curtice was under increasing pressure in recent weeks, and Stanford made no announcement to ease the pressure. This was his final season on a five-year contract agreement that Stanford President Wallace Sterling refused to break when Curtice was criticized after his winless 1960 season.

In five seasons at Stanford, the 55-year-old passing enthusiast compiled a 14-36 record. But the Indians were 4-6 last year and 5-5 this season, a drastic improvement on their 5-25 mark of the three previous campaigns.

Chicago Loyola's O'Hara Leads NCAA Cross-Country Run

EAST LANSING, Mich., (AP)—Tom O'Hara, the only entry from Loyola of Chicago, made the trip worth while Monday by winning the 24th annual NCAA four-mile cross country run in 19:20.3.

San Jose State took the team championship with 58 points. Villanova was second with 69 points.

O'Hara, a slight, 130-pound, 20-year-old junior from Chicago, placed fifth in the run last year and recently also won the Central Collegiate Conference long distance run.

His time bettered the former record of 19:28.2 over the Michigan State University golf course route, by Al Lawrence of Houston in 1960. It still was below the hot NCAA four-mile championship record on 19:12.3, by Max Truex of Southern California in 1957.

PERFORMS HERE — Jackie Coconut, an amazing young equilibrist from Australia, is the latest outstanding performer Owner-Coach Abe Saperstein of the Harlem Globetrotters will present in the between-the-halves entertainment co-featuring the basketball game between his Negro wizards and the San Francisco All-Nations team Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the Allegany High School gymnasium. This was the most outstanding of all the acts in last year's show here.

Navy Seeks 4th In Row Over Army

Middies Need Win For .500 Record

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Navy expects to be in its best physical shape of the season Saturday when it meets Army in the football game both service academies feel they must win.

Coach Wayne Hardin said Monday the Midshipmen are in near top condition with only a few minor injuries compared to those which have caused line-up shuffling all year.

John Sai, the hula hipped junior halfback who never has hit full stride because of a knee injury and an early season attack of mononucleosis, is even sound.

"He's 100 per cent now," Hardin said. "He should be ready to go full blast Saturday."

Other players also are going all out as Navy prepares for the battle which could wipe out prospects of its first losing football season since 1951. The Middies are 4-5 for the year, but all this will be quickly forgotten if they score their fourth straight win over Army.

"We've got to win this," Hardin said in summing up Navy's attitude. "The record for the season is immaterial."

He said despite Navy's five losses, "We haven't lost to anybody we should be ashamed of."

In their last outing, against second-ranked Southern California, the Middies dropped a 13-7 decision and came close to winning the game. Other Navy conquerors were Penn State, Syracuse, Notre Dame and Minnesota.

The battles are over now, and we're ready for the war," said Hardin.

Army, with a more successful season (6-3) under new coach Paul Dietzel, may be feeling the pressure even more than Navy after three straight losses in the service classic.

If Hardin wins his fourth straight, he will have done what no other Navy coach in the past has succeeded in doing.

Pays $1 A Point

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore Colt fan was fined $1 for each point by which his football team lost Sunday.

Herman L. Brooks, 25, was arrested trying to get in Municipal Stadium on an old pass that didn't belong to him. It cost him $57 Monday.

The Chicago Bears beat the Colts 57-0.

"It's no tragedy to miss a Colt game," Municipal Judge Robert I.H. Hammerman advised Brooks. "In fact, it was a tragedy to see yesterday's game."

West Virginia Looms Powerful In Basketball

Thorn Heads Cast, Open On Saturday

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP)—West Virginia basketball coach George King is making no promises, but there are signs here that another Mountaineer powerhouse is in the making.

"We've got a pretty tough schedule," King said, then added quickly, "But I think we can have as good a team as we had last year." That quintet compiled a 24-6 record en route to WVU's seventh Southern Conference championship in eight years.

The Keystones of that team—second-team All-America Rod Thorn, tall Tom Lowry, defensive whiz Gale Catlett and backcourt man Jim McCormick—are back.

And there's more.

Junior Mike Wolfe, a 6-5, 204-pounder from Belle, W. Va., proved such a pleasant surprise that he won himself a tentative starting spot against The Citadel here Dec. 1 in the Mountaineers' opener.

"He's made the most advance of any player on the squad," King said. "He was a big surprise."

A superb season for Rod Thorn would surprise no one. The 6-4 senior led last year's team in rebounding from his backcourt position, played a heads-up defensive floor game, hit 44 per cent of his shots and averaged 23.7 points a game.

"I don't see how you can improve much over that," King said. "He gave us an awful lot last year, and is set to have another real good year."

Senior McCormick brings into the new season a 15-point-a-game scoring average which, with Thorn his partner in backcourt, promises a potent scoring punch.

Villanova Will Play In Liberty Bowl On Dec. 15

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Villanova University Monday announced acceptance of an invitation to play in the fourth annual Liberty Bowl football game Dec. 15 at Philadelphia Stadium.

The Wildcats acceptance was announced by Athletic Director Arthur L. Mahan.

Ambrose (Bud) Dudley, president of Liberty Bowl Charities, said the bowl was "proud to have an outstanding institution such as Villanova competing in the classic which this year will benefit the 60 member hospitals in the Delaware Valley Hospital Council.

Dudley said he plans to announce an opponent for Villanova, which has a 7-2 record this year, within 48 hours.

Possible opponents were Auburn, Texas Christian, Oregon State, Miami of Florida, Florida, Nebraska and Duke.

25 Horses Perish In Stable Fire At Wheeling Downs

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — A fire raged through a stable area at Wheeling Downs here Monday night, killing at least 25 horses and causing damages estimated to be at least $100,000.

Fire Chief William S. McFadden said the fire may have been caused by a careless stablehand and a search for a body is being pressed. Six companies answered the alarm and fought the blaze for more than an hour.

The horses were stabled at the track for the beginning of the winter meet at the track starting Dec. 26.

Some of the units of the Wheeling Fire Department were returning from a fire in Warwood when they were re-routed to Wheeling Island for the fire at the race track.

The fire in Warwood gutted a Dan Dee Potato Chip Warehouse.

Lions To Play In Gator Bowl

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Penn State, named winner of the Lambert Trophy for the second consecutive year, Monday night accepted a bid to play in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 29.

The Forest Service of the Agriculture Department administers 181 billion wooded acres in 39 states and Puerto Rico.

Ft. Ashby Wins, 3-0

The Fort Ashby V.F.W. won three games from the Hi Dee Bar last night in an Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League match. Ronnie Hershberger paced the Vets with 27 points while K. Swan and F. Meister led Hi Dee with eight points each.

Yankees Trade Bill Skowron To Los Angeles For Stan Williams

Major Clubs Draft 56 For $695,000; Birds Lose Seven

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees Monday traded veteran first baseman Bill Skowron to the Los Angeles Dodgers for right-handed pitcher Stan Williams.

The deal, the first by the Yankees in the inter-league trading session, brought to New York a pitcher who is expected to become the fourth regular starter Manager Ralph Houk needed so desperately in the drive to the American League pennant and the World Series victory over San Francisco.

Williams, 26, had a 14-12 record with Los Angeles last season, his fifth with the Dodgers.

Skowron, called "Moose" by his Yankee teammates, has been a Yankee regular for eight years, playing on seven championship teams. He had a .270 batting average with 23 home runs last season.

Senators Trade Bright

In another trade, the Washington Senators sent 33-year-old first baseman Harry Bright to the Cincinnati Reds for rookie first baseman Rogelio Alvarez.

Bright, who started as a catcher with the Senators, took over first base when Dale Long was dealt to the Yanks. He hit .273 in 113 games last season with 17 homers and 67 runs batted in.

Alvarez, 24, played most of last year with San Diego of the Pacific Coast League where he hit .318 with 18 homers and 75 RBIs. He was the first baseman on the PCL all-star team. The Reds brought him up at the end of the season and he hit .214 in 14 games. Both Bright and Alvarez are right handed hitters.

The announcement of the trade, the third in the inter-league session, came after a day-long draft by the majors of minor league players. In all, the majors drafted a record 56 players from their rivals farm clubs for a $695,000, making heavy raids on the ranks of bonus babies at bargain prices.

Everybody except the Boston Red Sox got into the act with the New York Mets and the Washington Senators each taking six players. Most of the names meant little to the average fan, for 45 of the 56 were fuzzy-cheeked kids in their first full year of pro baseball.

Yanks Pick Kunkel

The talent-rich New York Yankees, who normally pass up the draft jackpot, dipped into the pool for the first time since they picked Gene Mauch, now manager of the Phillies, in 1951. General Manager Roy Hamey selected Bill Kunkel, a 26-year-old right-handed pitcher who was a relief man with Kansas City in 1961 and 1962 but finished the season at Toronto.

George Weiss, former head man of the Yankees and now president of the weak New York Mets, had first pick by virtue of the Mets' sorry last place finish in their first season. Weiss surprised many by taking second baseman Ted Schreiber from the Boston Red Sox' farm at Seattle, where he hit .277 but showed little power.

The draft for the first time was divided into three categories. The experienced players cost $25,000 each, and 11 were taken.

First year men signed before last December were next. Fifteen were taken at $12,000 each. Then came the men signed since last December, when a new rule was adopted to discourage payment of huge bonuses to untried schoolboys. The majors selected 30 from this category at $8,000 each.

All but seven of the major league teams took advantage of the special rule that allowed them to go one over their normal player limit and sign a 41st player from the $8,000 first year category.

Minors Select 60

The minor leagues drafted 60 players for $483,000, making an over-all total of 116 players for $1,178,000.

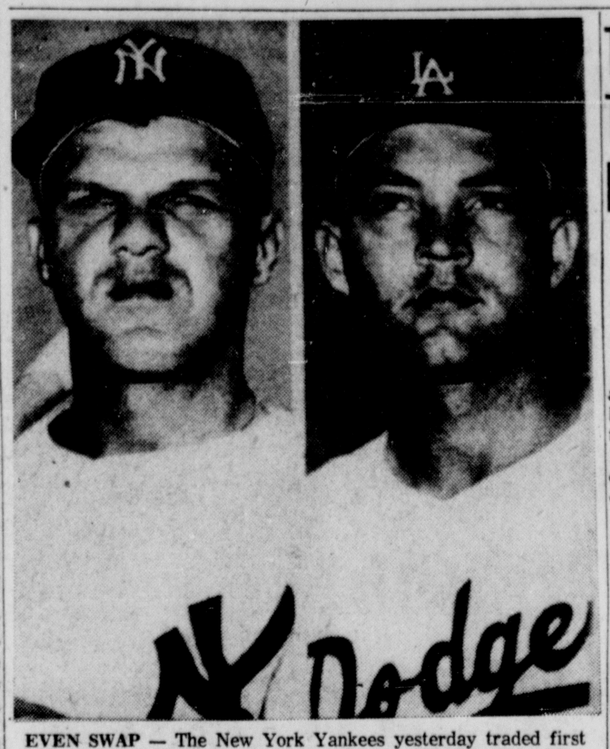

Of the 60 players drafted by the minor leagues, triple A leagues drafted 34 for $340,000; double A for $27,000; A leagues, 14, for $92,000; B leagues, 9 for $24,000, and C leagues, none.

The Mets drafted six for $90,000. Washington also took six for $73,000. Houston, Minnesota and Cleveland each picked five. The Senators and Colts went heavy in the $8,000 department, taking three each.

Orioles Hit Hard

Baltimore's stockpile really took a clobbering. The Orioles lost seven men from their Rochester farm in the International League. Of course, most of them never saw Rochester but performed in lower class leagues and were brought up after the season.

Cincinnati also was hard hit, losing six from its San Diego roster. Bill DeWitt, president of the Reds, picked up four men for $70,000, including 33-year-old Al Worthington, former major leaguer who had a 15-4 record at Indianapolis. The Reds may have picked up a real find a right-handed pitcher Barry Shollenberger, who won 16 and lost five at Waterloo, Iowa, and struck out 226 in 185 innings.

EVEN SWAP — The New York Yankees yesterday traded first baseman Bill "Moose" Skowron, left, for righthanded pitcher Stan Williams, of the Los Angeles Dodgers. It was a straight player trade in which the Yankees got an established starting pitcher for the veteran first sacker. Williams, a native of Enfield, N. H., had a 14-12 record last season, his fifth with the Dodgers. Skowron has been a Yankee regular for eight years, played on seven championship teams and last season batted .270 and hit 23 home runs. Nittany Lions Of Penn State Retain Trophy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Penn State Monday was named the Lambert Trophy winner, emblematic of the major college football championship of the East, for the second straight year.

The Nittany Lions, who compiled a 9-1 record, losing only to Army, were unanimous choice of the eight coaches, sports writers and broadcasters who comprise the board. It marks the third time in the 27-year history of the Lambert Trophy that Penn State has won the award. The Lions also won in 1947.

Unbeaten and untied Dartmouth, the Ivy League champion, was a unanimous choice for second place. The Indians won nine straight games for their first perfect season since 1925.

Army was named to third place with a 7.4 rating from the board rounding out the top 10 were Navy (6.4), Pittsburgh (6.0), Syracuse (5.0), Boston College (4.0), Holy Cross (3.6), Villanova (2.5) and Harvard (1.4).

Curtice Reported Through As Grid Coach At Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Cactus Jack Curtice, the joking country boy football coach, is through after five years at Stanford, The Associated Press learned Monday from an unimpeachable source.

University officials declined to issue an immediate confirmation, but athletic director Al Masters said an announcement might come later.

It was believed no one had been chosen to succeed the 1961 president of the Football Coaches Association of America.

Curtice was under increasing pressure in recent weeks, and Stanford made no announcment to ease the pressure. This was his final season on a five-year contract agreement that Stanford President Wallace Sterling refused to break when Curtice was criticized after his winless 1960 season.

In five seasons at Stanford, the 55-year-old passing enthusiast compiled a 14-36 record. But the Indians were 4-6 last year and 5-5 this season, a drastic improvement on their 5-25 mark of the three previous campaigns.

The Yanks' Richmond farm was hit for four.

"Which way is the first aid room?" asked Harry Dalton, the Orioles' farm director as he emerged from the draft meetings. Four of the seven lost were young pitchers who figured highly in the club's future plans.

Cincinnati also was hard hit, losing six from its San Diego roster. Bill DeWitt, president of the Reds, picked up four men for $70,000, including 33-year-old Al Worthington, former major leaguer who had a 15-4 record at Indianapolis. The Reds may have picked up a real find a right-handed pitcher Barry Shollenberger, who won 16 and lost five at Waterloo, Iowa, and struck out 226 in 185 innings.

Twins Get Keller

The Yanks' Richmond farm was hit for four. Best known was Charley Keller Jr., son of King Kong Keller, who was drafted by the Minnesota Twins after hitting .289 at Amarillo. Keller has been troubled by a bad back throughout his promising career.

Ellis Burton, former St. Louis outfielder, was selected by Houston from Toronto and Bob Sadowski, handyman infielder with the Chicago White Sox recently farmed to Indianapolis, was grabbed by the Los Angeles Angels.

The trade mill was grinding out rumors as big league general managers and managers held a series of meetings. Some never will be culminated. Others may be pulled off before the weekend and during the major league meeting in New York Friday and Saturday after the minor leagues end their convention Thursday.

Trojans Cling To No. 1 Spot In Grid Poll

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California's unbeaten and untied Trojans, seeking to bring the West Coast its first national football championship since 1939, clung to the No. 1 spot Monday in the major college rankings of The Associated Press.

The hot Trojans, 14-3 come-from-behind victors Saturday over UCLA, beat out their Jan. 1 Rose Bowl foe, Wisconsin's Badgers, who climbed from third to second. Wisconsin won the Big Ten Conference championship Saturday by nipping Minnesota 14-9.

Thirty-seven points separated Southern Cal and Wisconsin in the weekly voting. Based on 10 points for a first place ballot, nine for second and on down, the Trojans stacked up 397 points to 360 for the Badgers.

The Trojans picked up 19 of the 43 first place votes. Third-ranked Mississippi got 12, Wisconsin 9 and ninth-ranked Penn State 3.

Mississippi, idle last week, tumbled from second to third after a tight ballot battle with the Badgers. The undefeated Rebels collected 350 points.

Then came Texas with 299, Alabama 230, Arkansas 187, Louisiana State 155, Oklahoma 132, Penn State 129 and Minnesota 64.

Gophers Take Tumble

Minnesota got the hardest fall of the week. The Gophers fell all the way from fifth to 10th. Oklahoma's Sooners, who won the Big Eight crown and an Orange Bowl bid with a 34-6 triumph over Nebraska, soared two notches, rising from 10th to eighth.

Alabama, Arkansas and Louisiana State all moved up one rung on the national ladder. The Crimson Tide, idle last Saturday, moved from sixth to fifth. Arkansas, an easy 34-0 victor over Texas Tech, jumped from seventh to sixth. LSU stopped Tulane 38-3 and moved from eighth to seventh.

Texas and Penn State remained right where they were a week ago despite victories. The Longhorns, who stung Texas A&M 13-3, were fourth, and the Nittany Lions, who conquered Pitt 16-0, remained ninth.

Play Irish Saturday

Whether Southern California wins the national championship undoubtedly will depend on what happens in the Trojans' game at Los Angeles Saturday with vastly-improved Notre Dame. The national championship will be determined by next weekend's poll.

Only three other clubs among the top ten have unfinished business. Mississippi faces Mississippi State at Oxford, Alabama tests Auburn at Birmingham and Oklahoma goes to Oklahoma State.

Chicago Loyola's O'Hara Leads NCAA Cross-Country Run

EAST LANSING, Mich., (AP)—Tom O'Hara, the only entry from Loyola of Chicago, made the trip worth while Monday by winning the 24th annual NCAA four-mile cross country run in 19:20.3.

San Jose State took the team championship with 58 points. Villanova was second with 69 points.

O'Hara, a slight, 130-pound, 20-year-old junior from Chicago, placed fifth in the run last year and recently also won the Central Collegiate Conference long distance run.

His time bettered the former record of 19:28.2 over the Michigan State University golf course route, by Al Lawrence of Houston in 1960. It still was below the hot NCAA four-mile championship record on 19:12.3, by Max Truex of Southern California in 1957.

PERFORMS HERE — Jackie Coconut, an amazing young equilibrist from Australia, is the latest outstanding performer Owner-Coach Abe Saperstein of the Harlem Globetrotters will present in the between-the-halves entertainment co-featuring the basketball game between his Negro wizards and the San Francisco All-Nations team Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the Allegany High School gymnasium. This was the most outstanding of all the acts in last year's show here.

Navy Seeks 4th In Row Over Army

Middies Need Win For .500 Record

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Navy expects to be in its best physical shape of the season Saturday when it meets Army in the football game both service academies feel they must win.

Coach Wayne Hardin said Monday the Midshipmen are in near top condition with only a few minor injuries compared to those which have caused line-up shuffling all year.

John Sai, the hula hipped junior halfback who never has hit full stride because of a knee injury and an early season attack of mononucleosis, is even sound.

"He's 100 per cent now," Hardin said. "He should be ready to go full blast Saturday."

Other players also are going all out as Navy prepares for the battle which could wipe out prospects of its first losing football season since 1951. The Middies are 4-5 for the year, but all this will be quickly forgotten if they score their fourth straight win over Army.

"We've got to win this," Hardin said in summing up Navy's attitude. "The record for the season is immaterial."

He said despite Navy's five losses, "We haven't lost to anybody we should be ashamed of."

In their last outing, against second-ranked Southern California, the Middies dropped a 13-7 decision and came close to winning the game. Other Navy conquerors were Penn State, Syracuse, Notre Dame and Minnesota.

The battles are over now, and we're ready for the war," said Hardin.

Army, with a more successful season (6-3) under new coach Paul Dietzel, may be feeling the pressure even more than Navy after three straight losses in the service classic.

If Hardin wins his fourth straight, he will have done what no other Navy coach in the past has succeeded in doing.

Pays $1 A Point

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore Colt fan was fined $1 for each point by which his football team lost Sunday.

Herman L. Brooks, 25, was arrested trying to get in Municipal Stadium on an old pass that didn't belong to him. It cost him $57 Monday.

The Chicago Bears beat the Colts 57-0.

"It's no tragedy to miss a Colt game," Municipal Judge Robert I.H. Hammerman advised Brooks. "In fact, it was a tragedy to see yesterday's game."

West Virginia Looms Powerful In Basketball

Thorn Heads Cast, Open On Saturday

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP)—West Virginia basketball coach George King is making no promises, but there are signs here that another Mountaineer powerhouse is in the making.

"We've got a pretty tough schedule," King said, then added quickly, "But I think we can have as good a team as we had last year." That quintet compiled a 24-6 record en route to WVU's seventh Southern Conference championship in eight years.

The Keystones of that team—second-team All-America Rod Thorn, tall Tom Lowry, defensive whiz Gale Catlett and backcourt man Jim McCormick—are back.

And there's more.

Junior Mike Wolfe, a 6-5, 204-pounder from Belle, W. Va., proved such a pleasant surprise that he won himself a tentative starting spot against The Citadel here Dec. 1 in the Mountaineers' opener.

"He's made the most advance of any player on the squad," King said. "He was a big surprise."

A superb season for Rod Thorn would surprise no one. The 6-4 senior led last year's team in rebounding from his backcourt position, played a heads-up defensive floor game, hit 44 per cent of his shots and averaged 23.7 points a game.

"I don't see how you can improve much over that," King said. "He gave us an awful lot last year, and is set to have another real good year."

Senior McCormick brings into the new season a 15-point-a-game scoring average which, with Thorn his partner in backcourt, promises a potent scoring punch.

Villanova Will Play In Liberty Bowl On Dec. 15

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Villanova University Monday announced acceptance of an invitation to play in the fourth annual Liberty Bowl football game Dec. 15 at Philadelphia Stadium.

The Wildcats acceptance was announced by Athletic Director Arthur L. Mahan.

Ambrose (Bud) Dudley, president of Liberty Bowl Charities, said the bowl was "proud to have an outstanding institution such as Villanova competing in the classic which this year will benefit the 60 member hospitals in the Delaware Valley Hospital Council.

Dudley said he plans to announce an opponent for Villanova, which has a 7-2 record this year, within 48 hours.

Possible opponents were Auburn, Texas Christian, Oregon State, Miami of Florida, Florida, Nebraska and Duke.

25 Horses Perish In Stable Fire At Wheeling Downs

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — A fire raged through a stable area at Wheeling Downs here Monday night, killing at least 25 horses and causing damages estimated to be at least $100,000.

Fire Chief William S. McFadden said the fire may have been caused by a careless stablehand and a search for a body is being pressed. Six companies answered the alarm and fought the blaze for more than an hour.

The horses were stabled at the track for the beginning of the winter meet at the track starting Dec. 26.

The fire in Warwood gutted a Dan Dee Potato Chip Warehouse.

Lions To Play In Gator Bowl

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Penn State, named winner of the Lambert Trophy for the second consecutive year, Monday night accepted a bid to play in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 29.

The Forest Service of the Agriculture Department administers 181 billion wooded acres in 39 states and Puerto Rico.

Ft. Ashby Wins, 3-0

The Fort Ashby V.F.W. won three games from the Hi Dee Bar last night in an Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League match. Ronnie Hershberger paced the Vets with 27 points while K. Swan and F. Meister led Hi Dee with eight points each.

A house could be built with each corner in a different state at the common meeting point of Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

Medical Group Would Ban KO From Boxing

Penalty Proposed By New York Board

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) —The medical advisory board of the New York State Athletic Commission Monday agreed to consider elimination of the knockout in the professional boxing.

Board Chairman Dr. Marvin A. Stevens said during a public hearing of the joint legislative committee on professional boxing that the suggestion would be explored at the next meeting.

With it was a proposal that boxers be penalized for knocking out a opponent.

"Pressure could be brought on the referee to stop a fight if in any way he feels a man is in danger of being hurt," Stevens said.

He added that elimination of the knockout could be tried in preliminary fights. He said the fighter could be given points for not knocking out a man.

Stevens, former football coach at Yale, said boxing is a "fine sport" and should be in every school and college.

He said "there was no reason why medically-controlled, supervised boxing could not continue" in this state.

Several times during the hearing, doctors urged an end of "arm-chair philosophy" and called for definitive studies.

The committee resumes its inquiry into the medical aspects of professional boxing Monday. One witness is scheduled to be Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine.

The joint legislative committee has been looking into boxing in New York State to determine whether the sport should be continued. The committee was formed following the death of Benny (Kid) Paret in a title match earlier this year.

HIGH SCORERS

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Rams, featuring a tandem pass combination that outstripped the conventional five-man lines of those times, set a National Football League single-season record in 1950 by scoring 466 points in 12 games.

GRAND TOTAL?

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The Baltimore Colts of the National Football League set a record they'd rather forget in 1950 when they allowed opponents to score a grand total of 462 points against them in 12 games.

Point Shaver Promised $1,000, Received $200

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leonard Kaplan, former University of Alabama basketball player, testified in court Monday that he received only $200 of a $1,000 bribe that Jack Molinas offered him to "fix" a game in 1959.

Molinas, former pro and college basketball star and now a practicing attorney, is on trial in state Supreme Court on charges of bribing players to adjust the score of games and also of conspiracy to commit bribery. The district attorney's office has accused Molinas of being a "master fixer" of games through the country.

Kaplan, 24, said Molinas offered him a $1,000 bribe to hold down the score in a game against Tulane, Feb. 12, 1959, which Alabama won, 74-72, and offered him a similar bribe for a game against Auburn, Feb. 28, 1959, which Alabama lost, 69-50. Kaplan said he collected only $200 and tried for a year to get the rest of the money without success.

Kaplan also testified that he met with Molinas at a hotel in Baltimore during the current trial and that Molinas told himt hen he would deny offering Kaplan any bribes.

DENNIS DeJordy of the Buffalo Bisons was the first American Hockey League goal tender to register two shutouts this season.

Athletics Get Ted Bowsfield

Southpaw Chosen In Osinski Deal

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—The Los Angeles Angels Monday sent lefthanded pitcher Ted Bowsfield to the Kansas City Athletics to complete their payment for pitcher Dan Osinski, who was obtained from the A's during the past season.

The Bowsfield switch was on a conditional basis, because the 27-year - old southpaw recently injured his left wrist during an off-season accident.

Monday's transaction completed the controversial "Bo Belinsky" deal that never was consummated during the season. In that deal, the A's traded Osinski to the Angels for Belinsky, but Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick ruled out the transfer of Belinsky to the A's.

Kansas City was given its choice of pitchers Bowsfield or Eli Grba instead of Belinsky, and today chose Bowsfield conditionally. Bowsfield, who had a 9-8 record and a 4.40 earned run average during 1962, formerly pitched for Boston and Cleveland and came to the Angels in the expansion draft in 1961.

GLENN Hall, goalie for the Chicago Black Hawks, opened the 1962-63 hockey season with 490 straight games under his belt.

A Nepalese mystic spent two nights wandering barefoot in the Mingbo Valley of the Himalayas while a snowstorm raged, the National Geographic Magazine says. Though his hands and feet were swollen, the mystic suffered no frostbite. Physiologists found the Nepalese had an amazing ability to control the circulation of blood to his extremities.

The Explorers won 21 of 24 games last season but Coach George W. Geatz faces a rebuilding job after losing all but one regular as a result of graduation. Fort Ashby, with Quentin Sayers at the helm, posted a 12-11 record for the 1961-62 campaign.

Piedmont won 16 of 23 contests last season while the Elks won 18 and lost five.

The two other Saturday games are billed for Keyser and Frostburg between college teams.

Baltimore At Frostburg

Baltimore University is slated to oppose Dr. Ron Van Ryswyk's Frostburg State Teachers' College quint in the Mountain City at 8 p.m., while at Keyser Coach Dana G. "Horse" Lough's Potomac State College Catamounts will host Altoona, Pa., Campus.

Frostburg State copped 17 and lost nine games last season while Potomac State wound up with a 10-17 mark.

Fort Hill opens its season December 11 at South Hagerstown and Allegany kicks off the lid December 14 by playing host to the Martinsburg Bulldogs.

Medical Group Would Ban KO From Boxing

Penalty Proposed By New York Board

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) —The medical advisory board of the New York State Athletic Commission Monday agreed to consider elimination of the knockout in the professional boxing.

Board Chairman Dr. Marvin A. Stevens said during a public hearing of the joint legislative committee on professional boxing that the suggestion would be explored at the next meeting.

With it was a proposal that boxers be penalized for knocking out a opponent.

"Pressure could be brought on the referee to stop a fight if in any way he feels a man is in danger of being hurt," Stevens said.

He added that elimination of the knockout could be tried in preliminary fights. He said the fighter could be given points for not knocking out a man.

Stevens, former football coach at Yale, said boxing is a "fine sport" and should be in every school and college.

He said "there was no reason why medically-controlled, supervised boxing could not continue" in this state.

Several times during the hearing, doctors urged an end of "arm-chair philosophy" and called for definitive studies.

The committee resumes its inquiry into the medical aspects of professional boxing Monday. One witness is scheduled to be Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine.

The joint legislative committee has been looking into boxing in New York State to determine whether the sport should be continued. The committee was formed following the death of Benny (Kid) Paret in a title match earlier this year.

HIGH SCORERS

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Rams, featuring a tandem pass combination that outstripped the conventional five-man lines of those times, set a National Football League single-season record in 1950 by scoring 466 points in 12 games.

GRAND TOTAL?

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The Baltimore Colts of the National Football League set a record they'd rather forget in 1950 when they allowed opponents to score a grand total of 462 points against them in 12 games.

Point Shaver Promised $1,000, Received $200

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leonard Kaplan, former University of Alabama basketball player, testified in court Monday that he received only $200 of a $1,000 bribe that Jack Molinas offered him to "fix" a game in 1959.

Molinas, former pro and college basketball star and now a practicing attorney, is on trial in state Supreme Court on charges of bribing players to adjust the score of games and also of conspiracy to commit bribery. The district attorney's office has accused Molinas of being a "master fixer" of games through the country.

Kaplan, 24, said Molinas offered him a $1,000 bribe to hold down the score in a game against Tulane, Feb. 12, 1959, which Alabama won, 74-72, and offered him a similar bribe for a game against Auburn, Feb. 28, 1959, which Alabama lost, 69-50. Kaplan said he collected only $200 and tried for a year to get the rest of the money without success.

Kaplan also testified that he met with Molinas at a hotel in Baltimore during the current trial and that Molinas told himt hen he would deny offering Kaplan any bribes.

DENNIS DeJordy of the Buffalo Bisons was the first American Hockey League goal tender to register two shutouts this season.

Athletics Get Ted Bowsfield

Southpaw Chosen In Osinski Deal

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—The Los Angeles Angels Monday sent lefthanded pitcher Ted Bowsfield to the Kansas City Athletics to complete their payment for pitcher Dan Osinski, who was obtained from the A's during the past season.

The Bowsfield switch was on a conditional basis, because the 27-year - old southpaw recently injured his left wrist during an off-season accident.

Monday's transaction completed the controversial "Bo Belinsky" deal that never was consummated during the season. In that deal, the A's traded Osinski to the Angels for Belinsky, but Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick ruled out the transfer of Belinsky to the A's.

Kansas City was given its choice of pitchers Bowsfield or Eli Grba instead of Belinsky, and today chose Bowsfield conditionally. Bowsfield, who had a 9-8 record and a 4.40 earned run average during 1962, formerly pitched for Boston and Cleveland and came to the Angels in the expansion draft in 1961.

GLENN Hall, goalie for the Chicago Black Hawks, opened the 1962-63 hockey season with 490 straight games under his belt.

A Nepalese mystic spent two nights wandering barefoot in the Mingbo Valley of the Himalayas while a snowstorm raged, the National Geographic Magazine says. Though his hands and feet were swollen, the mystic suffered no frostbite. Physiologists found the Nepalese had an amazing ability to control the circulation of blood to his extremities.

Valo Joins Tribe

ROCHESTER (AP) — Elmer Valo, veteran of 20 years in the majors, was named the coach of the Cleveland Indians Monday.

Valo, who spent most of his time with the old Philadelphia Athletics, was a scout for the New York Mets last season. His last active year as a player was in 1961, when he played with the Minnesota Twins and Philadelphia Phillies.

Ohio U. Agrees To Play Texans

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — The Sun Bowl committee said Monday Ohio University had agreed to face West Texas State in the bowl's 29th annual game at El Paso on Dec. 31.

West Texas State had previously accepted a bid to be the host team in the year's end classic.

Ohio accepted the bowl bid despite losing to Iowa State 31-22 last Saturday. The Cavaliers finished their season with an 8-2 record and were the runners-up in the mid-America Conference.

Card of Thanks

We will be forever indebted to the many friends and neighbors for the various ways they gave assistance and comfort to us, through the period of the illness, death and burial of our dear wife and mother, Margaret C. Crabtree. May the Lord reward them, every one.

HER HUSBAND AND DAUGHTERS

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors of Bowling Green and McGrawville and especially the Bowling Green Fire Department for their kindness and help during our recent misfortune when our home burned.

We will be forever indebted to the many friends and neighbors for the various ways they gave assistance and comfort to us, through the period of the illness, death and burial of our dear wife and mother, Margaret C. Crabtree. May the Lord reward them, every one.

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors of Bowling Green and McGrawville and especially the Bowling Green Fire Department for their kindness and help during our recent misfortune when our home burned.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 187 No war keeps many private individuals from enjoying themselves. If theaters, race tracks, athletic stadiums continue offering diversions, they will be well attended.

In New York, a century ago, P. T. Barnum's "Great American Museum" in Broadway was attracting crowds to see "General Tom Thumb" and other freaks. There was high demand for tickets to "Mazeppa," a play starring Adah Isaacs Menken—the name adopted by Dolores Adios Fuertes of New Orleans after she married a musician, John Isaacs Menken.

Menken was the first of her four husbands. Charles Dickens, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Algernon Charles Swinburne and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow were among friends she cultivated meanwhile. Alexandre Dumas Sr. was an admirer she wanted to marry.

Adah had danced with an opera company at 11, penned a book of verse, and taught Latin and French in a girls' finishing school in New Orleans before she became a star on the dramatic stage. She was the first U.S.A. born actress to play with notable success in London and Paris. Her most popular performances were in "Mazeppa"—a melodrama based on Lord Byron's poem about a legendary Cossack chief.

Adah played the male lead without trying to look like one when the role required her to be semi-stripped of her clothing and lashed to a horse by the villain. The reputation that had preceded her return to her homeland, and the effect of Adah's appearance in the flesh, made "Mazeppa" irresistible to sightseeing theater-goers.

Longfellow could have had a good excuse for being one of the Stage Door Johnnies and Henries at "Mazeppa." Longfellow was a professor of classical languages, and Adah taught herself Greek well enough to make an original translation of "The Iliad."

—CLARK KINNAIRD

Left: Poster representing Adah Menken, who was the Marilyn Monroe of her era, as Mazeppa. Adah, who, like Marilyn, adopted the Jewish faith for one marriage, died at 33.

Infantrymen Leaving

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The main body of the 1st Battle Group of the 35th Infantry will leave Tuesday for Hawaii, the U.S. Embassy announced Monday. The entire infantry unit will have left Thailand by Dec. 4. One group left Saturday.

The police lineup was originated by Francois Vicocq, a French detective, early in the 19th century.

Ammunition Contracts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department has awarded Remington Arms Co. a $9.9 million ammunition contract.

Eastman Kodak Co.'s Holston Defense subsidiary obtained an army contract for $8.34 million for ammunition, and another ammunition award of $7.1 million went to Hercules Powder Co.

Go South

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges suggested Monday the South Pole could become a busy tourist center in the future. "It's really amazing to see what goes on down there," he said. "In sub-zero temperatures thousands of Americans are working there finding things out about the continent."

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 187 No war keeps many private individuals from enjoying themselves. If theaters, race tracks, athletic stadiums continue offering diversions, they will be well attended.

In New York, a century ago, P. T. Barnum's "Great American Museum" in Broadway was attracting crowds to see "General Tom Thumb" and other freaks. There was high demand for tickets to "Mazeppa," a play starring Adah Isaacs Menken—the name adopted by Dolores Adios Fuertes of New Orleans after she married a musician, John Isaacs Menken.

Menken was the first of her four husbands. Charles Dickens, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Algernon Charles Swinburne and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow were among friends she cultivated meanwhile. Alexandre Dumas Sr. was an admirer she wanted to marry.

Adah had danced with an opera company at 11, penned a book of verse, and taught Latin and French in a girls' finishing school in New Orleans before she became a star on the dramatic stage. She was the first U.S.A. born actress to play with notable success in London and Paris. Her most popular performances were in "Mazeppa"—a melodrama based on Lord Byron's poem about a legendary Cossack chief.

Adah played the male lead without trying to look like one when the role required her to be semi-stripped of her clothing and lashed to a horse by the villain. The reputation that had preceded her return to her homeland, and the effect of Adah's appearance in the flesh, made "Mazeppa" irresistible to sightseeing theater-goers.

Longfellow could have had a good excuse for being one of the Stage Door Johnnies and Henries at "Mazeppa." Longfellow was a professor of classical languages, and Adah taught herself Greek well enough to make an original translation of "The Iliad."

—CLARK KINNAIRD

Left: Poster representing Adah Menken, who was the Marilyn Monroe of her era, as Mazeppa. Adah, who, like Marilyn, adopted the Jewish faith for one marriage, died at 33.

Xi Nu Plans Yule Party

Xi Nu Chapter, BSP, held a brief business meeting following a tour of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, conducted by Samuel Metz and Patrick O'Brian. It was conducted by Mrs. Grace Moore. The group voted to have a Christmas party for husbands and members, December 15. It will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milo Green, North Mechanic Street.

A thank you note was received from Mrs. Sara Lynn Grandstaff. Council minutes were read and members urged to attend the inter-chapter buffet November 29 at 6 p. m., at St. Luke's Lutheran Church. Mrs. Donna Lambert reported all projects progressing. Mrs. Florence Snelson announced a meeting at her home in Midland for tonight.

Members attending were Mrs. Ruth Wood, Mrs. Mary Frances Martirano, Mrs. Lois Nickel, Mrs. Sara Rank, Mrs. Helen Treat, Mrs. Genevieve Twigg, Mrs. Yvonne Young, Mrs. Dolly Green and Miss Joan Hafer.

Infantrymen Leaving

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The main body of the 1st Battle Group of the 35th Infantry will leave Tuesday for Hawaii, the U.S. Embassy announced Monday. The entire infantry unit will have left Thailand by Dec. 4. One group left Saturday.

The police lineup was originated by Francois Vicocq, a French detective, early in the 19th century.

Ammunition Contracts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department has awarded Remington Arms Co. a $9.9 million ammunition contract.

Eastman Kodak Co.'s Holston Defense subsidiary obtained an army contract for $8.34 million for ammunition, and another ammunition award of $7.1 million went to Hercules Powder Co.

Go South

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges suggested Monday the South Pole could become a busy tourist center in the future. "It's really amazing to see what goes on down there," he said. "In sub-zero temperatures thousands of Americans are working there finding things out about the continent."

Home Damaged About $2,000

Three youngsters were admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser yesterday afternoon suffering from smoke inhalation as a result of a two-alarm fire which damaged a home on Virginia Street in the Potomac Heights section of that community.

Leonard McNemar eight; Penny Sue McNemar, seven, and Terry Lee McNemar, six, children of Mrs. Patricia (Hamilton) McNemar, were reported in "satisfactory" condition last night.

Volunteer firemen of Keyser and McCoole extinguished the fire which was believed to have been caused when some oily rags and paint in a bedroom ignited.

The children were taken from the burning home by neighbors who noticed smoke emitting from the dwelling, and were rushed to the hospital.

About $2,000 damage was caused to two bedrooms and the kitchen of the bungalow which is owned by the children's grandmother, Mrs. Carrie (Hamilton) Grove, New Creek.

W. Va. Court Upholds Sunday Closing Laws

Highest Tribunal Takes Action

CHARLESTON, W .Va. (UPI) The State Supreme Court unanimously upheld, in effect, Monday the constitutionality of West Virginia's much - debated Sunday closing laws, better known as "blue" laws.

The high court refused 4-0, with Judge Chauncey Browning absent, to consider a petition filed by Tri-State Distributors Inc., operators of Hech's Discount Store, Huntington. The firm sought a reversal of a Cabell County Common Pleas Court jury verdict finding Hech's guilty of doing business illegally on Sunday, a misdemeanor.

The case stemmed from a series of arrests at discount stores in Huntington during the Christmas period last year. In the test case which reached the high court, Tri-State was fined $15 for employing R. P. France as a salesclerk on Sunday.

In its appeal, Tri-State cited 14 alleged errors in the trial, including one that argued the conviction violated "due process" clauses of both the state and federal constitutions.

The firm also contended amendments to the closing laws over the years, expressly permitting such businesses as service stations and drug stores to operate on Sunday, amounted to discrimination.

An attorney for the firm, Edward H. Greene, Huntington, said Monday the petition will be resubmitted to the high court for consideration "as soon as practicable."

A total of 18 cases have been held in abeyance in Cabell County Common Pleas Court pending the outcome of the test case. In all instances, the defendants have pleaded "no contest" and, presumably, the lower court may impose fines when the test case is resolved. The cases involve Heck's, The Bazaar and Whiz discount stores of Huntington.

Tri-State sought a new trial unsuccessfully in Cabell County Common Pleas Court before appealing to the Supreme Court.

The high court upheld previously, in 1879 and 1922, the constitutionality of the Sunday laws. Spokesmen said Tri - State had thought that, perhaps, the various changes and exceptions in the Blue laws since then might have made them unconstitutional.

But the high court, by refusing to consider the appeal, indicated it believes the laws are still valid. Essentially, the blue laws prohibit, with exceptions, any person from "laboring at any trade or calling, or employing his minor children, apprentices or servants in labor or other business, except household or other work of necessity or charity..." on the Sabbath.

Elsewhere in its petition, Tri-State argued that "nowwhere in the statute is there any attempt to define what is work of necessity." If this determination is left to a jury, it asked, how may an employer know whether he is operating in violation of the law?

It also said that jury determination might also lead to inconsistence with one jury finding an employer guilty, while another jury might find an employer engaged in a similar practice innocent.

Greene said he could "not at this time" speculate on what action Tri-State or similar firms might contemplate if the high court refuses to consider the re-application.

One legal source indicated the most likely course of action was for aggrieved firms to seek legislation to rescind or modify the blue laws. At the same time, the West Virginia Retailers Association voted recently to ask the 1963 Legislature to tighten Sunday closing laws.

The dispute may be resolved on the floor of the Legislature. The U. S. Supreme Court has held that states have the constitutional right to impose such closing laws, not of a religious nature, but for the welfare of the community.

Minimum Pay Plan Is Opposed

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Silver Spring contractor said Monday a worker is better off if his employer can pay him what he wants because "he can earn what he's worth."

Tracy Coleman spoke against establishment of hourly wage minimums on state building contracts. The wages would be fixed by a state commission in line with prevailing wages on private building contracts in the area.

Coleman was a witness before a commission named by Gov. Tawes to make recommendations on enactment of a prevailing wage law in Maryland. Such an arrangement now covers federal contracts and state road commission work in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties.

Man Is Hurt In Two-Car Crash Here

A local man was hospitalized yesterday with injuries sustained in a two-car collision at the intersection of Park and Union streets, said city police.

Charles W. Thompson of 327 City View Terrace, driver of one of the cars, and a city patrolman was admitted to Memorial Hospital following the accident about 5:10 p.m.

Attaches said Thompson suffered a neck injury and will be X-rayed today. His condition is "satisfactory."

The driver of the other car was Norman F. Bohrer, RD 5, city, according to police who said he collided with the right front of the Thompson car which was proceeding south on Park Street.

Bohrer explained to police that he was in line of traffic on Union Street and claimed his accelerator stuck causing the car to ram into the Thompson auto.

City Police Officer James Swann, who is investigating the accident, said Bohrer has been charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Assisting him in the investigation is Officer Kenneth Henry who drove Thompson to the hospital in the injured man's car.

Bohrer was reported to have been on his way to the hospital to visit his wife at the time of the accident.

Man Is Injured In Cycle Mishap

A 26-year-old Ridgeley area man injured his left ankle yesterday while riding a motorcycle along West Virginia Route 28, authorities said.

William Wolfe, of RD 1, Ridgeley, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital about 6 p.m.

The man was reported to have been riding the cycle and hit a dog and in efforts to keep the motorcycle from falling on him stuck his foot out and injured it.

Md. Republicans List Expenses Hitting $88,000

Treasurer Contends Was Poorly Spent

By The Associated Press

The treasurer for the official Maryland Republican committee reported Monday it spent $88,000 in the Nov. 6 election campaign and he felt it was money spent unwisely.

Eliot Hurd said a lack of coordination among Republican statewide candidates caused a "waste of people's time and money."

He complained that the Republican State Central Committee was "working in a vacuum" because its candidates did not run as one ticket.

For instance, in Baltimore City there was a state Republican headquarters, Frank Small Jr., candidate for governor had one of his own and so did Newton I. Steers, candidate for congressman-at-large.

The Republicans did not win any of the five statewide voting contests.

Hurd said the campaign expense statement he filed in Towson Circuit Court was strictly an accounting of money handled by the statewide central committee. He said the candidates would file their own individual statements which were due by midnight Monday.

Small's campaign manager did just that with the Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

Carlton E. Pyles reported that Small spent $108,858 in his own behalf. More than $41,000 was raised at a testimonial dinner and $67,000 were listed in contributions, including $5,000 each from Small, his wife, and Pyles.

Steers listed total expense of $28,529 with bills outstanding of $8,351.

The Democratic state campaign headquarters had reported last week it spent $371,947.

In addition to spending and contribution statements by state committees and the individual candidates, local campaign groups also make reports so that overall amounts are obscured. A lot of the money is reported in duplicate.

For example, the Washington County Democratic Central Committee listed in Hagerstown Monday a contribution of $4,500 from the state organization.

The Washington County committee reported it spent a total of $14,031 out of receipts of $16,399.

In reverse flow, Hurd's report for the state committee listed a contribution of $1,000 from the Montgomery County group.

Hurd also filed the financial report for the Baltimore County Republican campaign. It showed gross receipts of $21,276 and disbursements of $21,692.

Both parties for the first time included the individual names of purchasers of tickets for fund raising dinners. They used to be listed in a lump form contribution.

Accelerated Public Works Plan Is Discussed Here

The possibility of obtaining federal help on several city projects through the Federal Accelerated Public Works Program was discussed at a meeting yesterday in the office of Mayor Earl D. Chaney.

Attending were Milton B. Millon, director of the Municipal Technical Advisory Service of the University of Maryland; his assistant, Bill Ratchford; Mayor Chaney, City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery, City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, Comptroller Paul E. Rodecap and the city's financial advisor, Arthur B. Gibson.

The meeting developed as Mr. Millon and Mr. Ratchford dropped by City Hall yesterday afternoon as they were in this section to meet with officials of Frostburg and Lonaconing, which are engaged in charter revision projects.

Last Monday, the Mayor and Council read a letter from the State Health Department advising that matching funds are available to the city through the Federal Accelerated Public Works Program for civic projects.

It was pointed out that Cumberland is certified as a redevelopment area and eligible under the program.

The funds will be available only when projects can be placed under contract during the current fiscal year and substantially completed within 12 months.

A prime possibility, the group agreed, would be the project planned by the Water Department to rehabilitate the gate chamber at Lake Gordon and to install a low-lift pumping station.

Water Commissioner G. Ray Light has received permission to advertise for bids for the project.

Mr. Millon pointed out that other city projects, such as water lines, water storage tanks, improvements to bridges, streets and sewers should qualify, and that almost any civic project for which federal or state aid is not currently available would come under the provisions of the accelerated program.

The matter last week was referred to the City-County Water-Sewage Commission, and Mr. Millon hopes today to confer with officials of that group.

The channel of the Potomac River in the vicinity of Smith Island is to be improved by the Corps of Engineers during coming months under a $350,000 accelerated public works allocation provided by Congress.

1963 Wheat Applications Due Dec. 14

December 14 is the last day for signing up under the 1963 wheat stabilization program for farms in the winter wheat area, according to William L. Dudley, chairman of Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation state committee.

Farmers who participate in the 1963 program will be eligible to receive special payments for voluntarily diverting a part of their allotment or base acreage from the production of wheat and devoting that acreage to a conservation use. They will also qualify for extra price support payments and for the regular price support loan or purchase agreements.

Under this voluntary wheat reduction program, farmers may divert from 20 to 50 per cent of their wheat allotment or base acreage, with special diversion provisions for small farms.

Growers are cautioned, however, to sign up for only the amount of acreage they intend to divert from 1963 production. Failure to divert the full amount of acreage signed up would result in loss of diversion and price support payments, as well as loss of eligibility for the regular wheat price support loan or purchase agreement.

Further information may be obtained at the County ASCS office, 126 Union Street, Miss Elizabeth Hoover, manager said.

Water Use Normal

Water consumption averaged a normal 11,446,000 gallons daily last week, slightly less than last year's 11,838,000 gallons. Lake Gordon was three feet, eight inches below the spillway Sunday, and Lake Koon was down 13 feet.

Board To Make State Election Official Soon

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The State Board of Canvassers will meet here Wednesday afternoon to certify to the governor the results of the Nov. 6 general election.

Lloyd L. Simpkins, secretary of state and convening officer of the board, said the members would tabulate the votes for all statewide positions and certify the elections of the local offices.

He said the governor will then issue the commissions of offices which will be mailed to the clerks of the courts in the subdivisions.

It was reported in a story in yesterday morning's News that an examination is required.

Valley Senior Is Finalist In Youth Program

Winners Will Be Named Thursday

John G. Warnick, a Valley High School senior, was notified yesterday that he has been selected as one of ten Maryland finalists in the U. S. Senate Youth Program.

This program was set up by the Senate in October whereby two outstanding high school students from each state will be selected to represent their state as guests of the Congress for the period of January 27 through February 2. Youths also had to participate in some school activity to be eligible.

The two representatives for Maryland will be determined Thursday at 10 a. m. in the Board Room of the State Department of Education in Baltimore when the ten finalists will be interviewed by a panel of judges.

The state program was under the direction of Paul E. Huffington, director of the Division of Instruction, Maryland State Department of Education. The program was sponsored at Valley High School by the Student Council under the direction of Mrs. Margaret B. Sloan, faculty advisor.

Paul D. Beable, principal of Valley High, said young Warnick has been selected as one of the ten finalists by a special screening committee. Fifty-four state high school students competed in the semi-final screening held November 8 and their responses were evaluated by the screening committee November 16 to select the finalists.

The Valley High senior is president of the student council, business manager of the year book and a member of the French Club.

Hot Shoppe Employes Will Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board directed Monday that a bargaining representative election be held for employes of Hot Shoppes at Friendship Airport.

The election was sought by Teamsters Local Union No. 333.

The company argued the unit at Friendship was too limited in scope and proposed that its employes at National Airport in Washington also be included in any voting for or against union representation.

The NLRB ruled that the operations are separate in administration and Friendship is appropriate as a collective bargaining unit.

Hot Shoppes has 115 employes at Friendship and 250 at two units at National Airport.

The cases involve Heck's, The Bazaar and Whiz discount stores of Huntington.

Tri-State sought a new trial unsuccessfully in Cabell County Common Pleas Court before appealing to the Supreme Court.

The high court upheld previously, in 1879 and 1922, the constitutionality of the Sunday laws. Spokesmen said Tri - State had thought that, perhaps, the various changes and exceptions in the Blue laws since then might have made them unconstitutional.

But the high court, by refusing to consider the appeal, indicated it believes the laws are still valid. Essentially, the blue laws prohibit, with exceptions, any person from "laboring at any trade or calling, or employing his minor children, apprentices or servants in labor or other business, except household or other work of necessity or charity..." on the Sabbath.

Elsewhere in its petition, Tri-State argued that "nowwhere in the statute is there any attempt to define what is work of necessity." If this determination is left to a jury, it asked, how may an employer know whether he is operating in violation of the law?

It also said that jury determination might also lead to inconsistence with one jury finding an employer guilty, while another jury might find an employer engaged in a similar practice innocent.

Greene said he could "not at this time" speculate on what action Tri-State or similar firms might contemplate if the high court refuses to consider the reapplication.

One legal source indicated the most likely course of action was for aggrieved firms to seek legislation to rescind or modify the blue laws. At the same time, the West Virginia Retailers Association voted recently to ask the 1963 Legislature to tighten Sunday closing laws.

The dispute may be resolved on the floor of the Legislature. The U. S. Supreme Court has held that states have the constitutional right to impose such closing laws, not of a religious nature, but for the welfare of the community.

Minimum Pay Plan Is Opposed

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Silver Spring contractor said Monday a worker is better off if his employer can pay him what he wants because "he can earn what he's worth."

Tracy Coleman spoke against establishment of hourly wage minimums on state building contracts. The wages would be fixed by a state commission in line with prevailing wages on private building contracts in the area.

Coleman was a witness before a commission named by Gov. Tawes to make recommendations on enactment of a prevailing wage law in Maryland. Such an arrangement now covers federal contracts and state road commission work in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties.

Man Is Hurt In Two-Car Crash Here

A local man was hospitalized yesterday with injuries sustained in a two-car collision at the intersection of Park and Union streets, said city police.

Charles W. Thompson of 327 City View Terrace, driver of one of the cars, and a city patrolman was admitted to Memorial Hospital following the accident about 5:10 p.m.

Attaches said Thompson suffered a neck injury and will be X-rayed today. His condition is "satisfactory."

The driver of the other car was Norman F. Bohrer, RD 5, city, according to police who said he collided with the right front of the Thompson car which was proceeding south on Park Street.

Bohrer explained to police that he was in line of traffic on Union Street and claimed his accelerator stuck causing the car to ram into the Thompson auto.

City Police Officer James Swann, who is investigating the accident, said Bohrer has been charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Assisting him in the investigation is Officer Kenneth Henry who drove Thompson to the hospital in the injured man's car.

Bohrer was reported to have been on his way to the hospital to visit his wife at the time of the accident.

Md. Republicans List Expenses Hitting $88,000

Treasurer Contends Was Poorly Spent

By The Associated Press

The treasurer for the official Maryland Republican committee reported Monday it spent $88,000 in the Nov. 6 election campaign and he felt it was money spent unwisely.

Eliot Hurd said a lack of coordination among Republican statewide candidates caused a "waste of people's time and money."

He complained that the Republican State Central Committee was "working in a vacuum" because its candidates did not run as one ticket.

For instance, in Baltimore City there was a state Republican headquarters, Frank Small Jr., candidate for governor had one of his own and so did Newton I. Steers, candidate for congressman-at-large.

The Republicans did not win any of the five statewide voting contests.

Hurd said the campaign expense statement he filed in Towson Circuit Court was strictly an accounting of money handled by the statewide central committee. He said the candidates would file their own individual statements which were due by midnight Monday.

Small's campaign manager did just that with the Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

Carlton E. Pyles reported that Small spent $108,858 in his own behalf. More than $41,000 was raised at a testimonial dinner and $67,000 were listed in contributions, including $5,000 each from Small, his wife, and Pyles.

Steers listed total expense of $28,529 with bills outstanding of $8,351.

The Democratic state campaign headquarters had reported last week it spent $371,947.

In addition to spending and contribution statements by state committees and the individual candidates, local campaign groups also make reports so that overall amounts are obscured. A lot of the money is reported in duplicate.

For example, the Washington County Democratic Central Committee listed in Hagerstown Monday a contribution of $4,500 from the state organization.

The Washington County committee reported it spent a total of $14,031 out of receipts of $16,399.

In reverse flow, Hurd's report for the state committee listed a contribution of $1,000 from the Montgomery County group.

Hurd also filed the financial report for the Baltimore County Republican campaign. It showed gross receipts of $21,276 and disbursements of $21,692.

Both parties for the first time included the individual names of purchasers of tickets for fund raising dinners. They used to be listed in a lump form contribution.

Accelerated Public Works Plan Is Discussed Here

The possibility of obtaining federal help on several city projects through the Federal Accelerated Public Works Program was discussed at a meeting yesterday in the office of Mayor Earl D. Chaney.

Attending were Milton B. Millon, director of the Municipal Technical Advisory Service of the University of Maryland; his assistant, Bill Ratchford; Mayor Chaney, City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery, City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, Comptroller Paul E. Rodecap and the city's financial advisor, Arthur B. Gibson.

The meeting developed as Mr. Millon and Mr. Ratchford dropped by City Hall yesterday afternoon as they were in this section to meet with officials of Frostburg and Lonaconing, which are engaged in charter revision projects.

Last Monday, the Mayor and Council read a letter from the State Health Department advising that matching funds are available to the city through the Federal Accelerated Public Works Program for civic projects.

It was pointed out that Cumberland is certified as a redevelopment area and eligible under the program.

The funds will be available only when projects can be placed under contract during the current fiscal year and substantially completed within 12 months.

A prime possibility, the group agreed, would be the project planned by the Water Department to rehabilitate the gate chamber at Lake Gordon and to install a low-lift pumping station.

Water Commissioner G. Ray Light has received permission to advertise for bids for the project.

Mr. Millon pointed out that other city projects, such as water lines, water storage tanks, improvements to bridges, streets and sewers should qualify, and that almost any civic project for which federal or state aid is not currently available would come under the provisions of the accelerated program.

The matter last week was referred to the City-County Water-Sewage Commission, and Mr. Millon hopes today to confer with officials of that group.

The channel of the Potomac River in the vicinity of Smith Island is to be improved by the Corps of Engineers during coming months under a $350,000 accelerated public works allocation provided by Congress.

1963 Wheat Applications Due Dec. 14

December 14 is the last day for signing up under the 1963 wheat stabilization program for farms in the winter wheat area, according to William L. Dudley, chairman of Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation state committee.

Farmers who participate in the 1963 program will be eligible to receive special payments for voluntarily diverting a part of their allotment or base acreage from the production of wheat and devoting that acreage to a conservation use. They will also qualify for extra price support payments and for the regular price support loan or purchase agreements.

Under this voluntary wheat reduction program, farmers may divert from 20 to 50 per cent of their wheat allotment or base acreage, with special diversion provisions for small farms.

Growers are cautioned, however, to sign up for only the amount of acreage they intend to divert from 1963 production. Failure to divert the full amount of acreage signed up would result in loss of diversion and price support payments, as well as loss of eligibility for the regular wheat price support loan or purchase agreement.

Further information may be obtained at the County ASCS office, 126 Union Street, Miss Elizabeth Hoover, manager said.

Water Use Normal

Water consumption averaged a normal 11,446,000 gallons daily last week, slightly less than last year's 11,838,000 gallons. Lake Gordon was three feet, eight inches below the spillway Sunday, and Lake Koon was down 13 feet.

Valley Senior Is Finalist In Youth Program

Winners Will Be Named Thursday

John G. Warnick, a Valley High School senior, was notified yesterday that he has been selected as one of ten Maryland finalists in the U. S. Senate Youth Program.

This program was set up by the Senate in October whereby two outstanding high school students from each state will be selected to represent their state as guests of the Congress for the period of January 27 through February 2. Youths also had to participate in some school activity to be eligible.

The two representatives for Maryland will be determined Thursday at 10 a. m. in the Board Room of the State Department of Education in Baltimore when the ten finalists will be interviewed by a panel of judges.

The state program was under the direction of Paul E. Huffington, director of the Division of Instruction, Maryland State Department of Education. The program was sponsored at Valley High School by the Student Council under the direction of Mrs. Margaret B. Sloan, faculty advisor.

Paul D. Beable, principal of Valley High, said young Warnick has been selected as one of the ten finalists by a special screening committee. Fifty-four state high school students competed in the semi-final screening held November 8 and their responses were evaluated by the screening committee November 16 to select the finalists.

The Valley High senior is president of the student council, business manager of the year book and a member of the French Club.

Hot Shoppe Employes Will Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board directed Monday that a bargaining representative election be held for employes of Hot Shoppes at Friendship Airport.

The election was sought by Teamsters Local Union No. 333.

The company argued the unit at Friendship was too limited in scope and proposed that its employes at National Airport in Washington also be included in any voting for or against union representation.

The NLRB ruled that the operations are separate in administration and Friendship is appropriate as a collective bargaining unit.

Hot Shoppes has 115 employes at Friendship and 250 at two units at National Airport.
